Pope Hall students returning from their spring vacations discover that there is only hot water from 8 p.m. until 7:15 a.m. The maintenance crew responding to a call could not find the problem.

Tuesday, March 27
Director of Facilities, James Cummings Jr., finds a damaged coil in a hot water tank that has sprung a leak. Cummings contacts Housing Director, Mr. Mello, to order the necessary parts. Meanwhile, a temporary fix is made in which the damaged coil is welded together (after Ms. FitzGerald reported to The Comment that they hope that the welded coil will last for the remaining six weeks of school). 8:30 p.m. The water is switched on. Hot water is now available. Between 7 and 8 p.m. Student Asia Fields is in the dormitory and at the Scott Hall dormitory.

The following is about missing hot water, a broken pipe and the disappearance of emergency lights at the Pope Hall dormitories and at the Scott Hall dormitory.

Students Organize Against Increases

By Gregory Mathis

The General Education Requirement hearings are still going on, and apparently students are not interested. There have been pleas from Senator Judy Henry and committee member Christine Quinn for students to attend these crucial meetings, however there has been very little response.

Cummings should realize that these hearings will directly affect them in the future. The purpose of the open hearings is to get student input, so that the general pattern of the GERS will reflect students' opinions, not only the faculty's. If students do not show up at these hearings, the committee will have little student input to go on when the committee makes the final decisions.

In the foreign language classes in the spring, Foreign Language hearings have drawn great attention; however the others may be just as significant for students. A summary of the proposals made by the Department of Biological Sciences on March 8 are as follows:

The science course requirements for the Bachelor's Degree with an Education major will be six (6) credits of Biological Sciences with a lab, six (6) credits of Physical Sciences with a lab, six (6) credits of Earth Sciences, six (6) credits of Mathematics.

All science courses which would be a part of the General Education Requirements for the Bachelor's Degree in all other majors would consist of three (3) credits of Biological Sciences with a lab, three credits of a science course with a lab from either Biology, Chemistry, Earth Science, or Physics, and three credits of a science course with or without a lab.

The state-wide drive in effect this morning and this afternoon (Thursday) during the SGA's Student Government Committee Hearing at Regents acted to bring the state's colleges into opposition of the $127 tuition increase.
Dear Governor Dukakis,

As a former legislator and present member of the Board of Trustees of Bridgewater State College, and as a parent of college-age children, I am extremely concerned about the Board of Regents’ plan to increase tuition at the Commonwealth’s public state colleges and universities. The recent Tuition Policy formulated by the Regents appears to address the development of stable and equitable tuition revenue for State higher education institutions. However, in my view, it does not promote equity and access for all students.

I am particularly concerned that implementation of a program of escalating tuition increases will deny access for many students and will place an unacceptable burden on families of diverse socioeconomic backgrounds.

First, as an alumna of Bridgewater State College and presently as a Trustee of this institution, I am keenly aware of the many groups of citizens that directly and indirectly benefit from our public higher educational system and the low tuition concept. Pricing colleges, families, and the community that relies on a stable educational system and a healthy tax base is an attainable, accessible, low-cost system of higher education. Publicly funded, competitively priced higher education provides an investment in the future of our society and our state.

I am firmly convinced that the Commonwealth’s public higher education system is an investment in human capital.

What kind of promise is higher education to a hopelessly ridden family? The time has come to help all middle- and low-income, disadvantaged, or middle-class students to keep college costs down. And the only solution that increases access and affordability of higher education is the principle of public higher education and institutions of higher education.

The reason for acceptance of a low tuition program by the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education is that in the past 150 years, higher education has become a virtual political and legal extension of the free public system of education. In the public system, the secondary school system which has made this country the best educated and most productive nation in the world. Also, Americans view education as a universal, free or low-cost education as one of the fundamental democratic safeguards of way of life. For many the question would arise, “Where is the money coming from?”

My answer is that education must be considered a priority for society to be fair and effective. It is an investment. The Commonwealth’s public higher educational system is a public trust, one that has traditionally been managed by the families and the community that the State is tied to its human resources.

Bridgewater Trustee On Tuition Hikes

Dear Governor Deukmejian,

As a former legislator present member of the Board of Trustees of Bridgewater State College, and as a parent of college age children, I am extremely concerned about the plan of the Board of Regents to increase tuition at the Commonwealth’s public state colleges and universities.

The recent Tuition Policy formulated by the Regents appears to be addressing the development of tuition and equitable state-aid distribution. However, I believe that the implementation of such a plan is not only detrimental to students, but also hinders the opportunities available to the Commonwealth’s citizens. Tuition hikes, whether minor or major, do not improve educational opportunities for students. They should be considered as a last resort in ensuring that college is accessible to all students.

It is important for us to remember that education is a fundamental right, and it is crucial that funds be allocated appropriately to foster its growth and development. We must ensure that tuition hikes are not a barrier to students who desire to pursue higher education.

Sincerely,

Matthew Peter Barnett
Brookline, MA

P.S. I would like to appoint a special task force to study the impact of tuition hikes on students. Include suggestions that would allow students to remain committed to their studies. I look forward to your response.

 Moscow '84

By Michael A. Riccardi

Moscow on the Hudson is the brilliantly touching story of a Russian defector attempting to create a new life amidst the strange and often absurd world of New York City.

The film was produced, directed and co-written by Paul Mazursky and stars Robin Williams, Maria Conchita Alonso, Colleen Dewhurst and Alejandro Rey.

Robin Williams, in his sensitive and affecting portrayal of Vladimir Ivanoff, gives us his finest screen performance yet. Finally, Williams seems to have found his character. Perhaps this is because, at first glance, Vladimir Ivanoff is an impossible character. He is beyond our fantasy—beyond our understanding. He is Vladimir Ivanoff, who prophesies "I dream."

Vienna is betrayed by a man in black and married in with him in their crowded Hanseatic laboratory. The police, a legal council from a Cuban, from a low in town with an Italian immigrant.

The movie is filled with such seemingly incongruities, but it is these incongruities that make "Moscow" so believable and touching. Only in America could we see a film with such great people living and working together.

Poor Planning By B.S.C. Chorale Society

By Scott Esau

On Tuesday night the Los Angeles Chapter of the Chorale Society held a Coffee Concert. The evening was planned to be poor planning and poor direction, but it was managed to provide some moments.

The evening centered around the talents of the new Pop band, the Meat Puppets II. Their music which was放到 the audience and was managed to provide some moments. The group was a little bit more than they expected.

The Meat Puppets is a band, under the direction of James Magner. Their new album, King of the Mountains, is a strange name for a band. But after listening to Meat Puppets II on SST records I can understand. Their music is bizarre to say the least. It sounds like country and western performed by chambered nun bands. I still want to know what to make of it. They sang it in the show in the song 'I'm A Little Bit Idiot.'

Another night of the evening was the The Meat Puppets. Their first album, Meat is heavily dance. It is even worse. This week in PIRG

This week in PIRG I am going to talk about a few different issues that really caught my interest. I would like to respond to an article "Reforming Social Security" by Rep. Decker in last week's PIRG.

First of all, I am not really sure what point Rep. Decker is trying to make. "Reforming Social Security" is a topic that has been discussed for years. The system is supposed to be a retirement system for the elderly, but it is also used as a political tool. I would like to talk about that.

PIRG has been conducting research on Social Security for years. We have found that the system is not working for everyone. Some people are not able to get the benefits they need, while others are getting more than they need. We believe that the system needs to be reformed to ensure that everyone has the benefits they need.

We have been calling on Congress to act on the recommendations of the bipartisan National Commission on Social Security Reform. The commission recommended a number of changes to improve the system, including increasing the retirement age, reducing benefits for high-income earners, and expanding coverage to younger workers.

We encourage everyone to contact their representatives and urge them to support these recommendations. We believe that a reformed Social Security system is necessary to ensure that everyone has the benefits they need.

The burnell Lab School is not the "real world." This came as a surprise recently to students, teacher, and perhaps parents, as well. According to the laboratory's director, Dr. John Jones, who commented on the issue during a visit to the school, the laboratory "is not the real world." It is a place where students can learn and grow, but it is not the "real world."

First let me describe Burnell Lab School. It is a school that has everything a school should have. It has a gymnasium, a library, a cafeteria, a media center, and a music room. It is a modern school with all the latest equipment and textbooks, and a good social studies and science program. Student teachers at Burnell are required to do many things which are not done in other schools. They are doing classwork and teaching classes. They are doing many things which are not done in other schools. They are doing classwork and teaching classes. They are doing many things which are not done in other schools.

So, to answer the question, the "real world" is totally different from Burnell Lab School. There are no uniforms, no tests, no homework, no grades, no rewards, no punishments, no discipline, no(original text continues)

The social security system is the largest social program in the United States. It provides retirement benefits, disability benefits, and survivor benefits to individuals who have worked for the government. The system is funded by taxes paid by workers and employers.

This year, Congress has failed to act on the recommendations of the bipartisan National Commission on Social Security Reform. The commission recommended a number of changes to improve the system, including increasing the retirement age, reducing benefits for high-income earners, and expanding coverage to younger workers.

We encourage everyone to contact their representatives and urge them to support these recommendations. We believe that a reformed Social Security system is necessary to ensure that everyone has the benefits they need.

This Week In PIRG

This week in PIRG, I am going to follow the men's baseball game, which is due to take place tonight. I would like to report on the "Baseball vs. Bobcats" article by Bob Deck in last week's issue.

First of all, I am not really sure what the score is or who is going to win. Let's be honest, folks. What do we need in our lives other than to have everyone engaged in a sport? We should have a complete game.

I would like to say that Bob Deck, I am not sure if he is a complete optimizer. He also got perched and aggravated by this crazy,岑岑乱的 article. But in the end, it is about life itself. Isn't it about life itself?

In the article, they throw a wrench in their pitching game, and the men's baseball team has more than enough depth to last another year. Hard-throwing righthander John Dudley was plucked from a baseball contingent led by Falmouth right-hander John Dudley.

The Bears travel to Virginia Spring Beach in an attempt to beat SMU again. They won the last three games. The Bears have had more than enough time to prepare themselves for this game. The baseball team has more than enough depth in the pitching department. The Bears return of hard-throwing righthander John Dudley.

But the most important thing is the weather. Darlene "Dewey" Storey has pitched two shutouts. This has greatly helped our baseball team.

The Bears have a strong team this year. They have been undefeated in their last 15 games.

The Burnell Lab School is not the "real world." This came as a surprise recently to school student, teacher, and administrator alike. The lab school is a place where teachers and students will be facilitating a successful experiment.

Richard Corbin, who runs the Massachusetts State Board alternative school program for PIRG, works on lab school, as well as working on other environmental issues. He involved in the Ministry of Education, working on the Children's Program, and was involved in the Ministry of Public Education. The Ministry of Public Education is working on the children's program and was involved in the Ministry of Public Education.

School student at Burnell is required to do many things which are not done in other schools. They work on projects, do research, and do tests during method classes. Research lessons require manipulations (jussles, games, and tests) and lessons which have to be done during method classes were repeated.

In the words of Stuey, "I am still trying to keep up with this stuff."

So, to answer the question, the lab school is not the "real world." It is a place where teachers and students will be facilitating a successful experiment. The lab school is a place where teachers and students will be facilitating a successful experiment.

Now that the spring sports are wrapping up for the year, it is time to look back at the impressive team that is the women's softball team.

The team recently played a 2-0 record and the next game will be held at Boston College on April 12 at 3 p.m. Their first game was against U Mass/Boston last Friday by an 11-1 score. All nine players contributed to the win.

One thing which Burnell doesn't have is a tennis court. The only place they have is an outdoor court. One lunch time, we went out there and saw some people playing tennis. But nothing to compare to a full tennis court. It was very crowded and they had to cancel.

The men's tennis team has more depth than the women's. They have more than enough depth to last for the rest of the year.

Joe Goovle, the men's baseball team has been plagued by storms and weather. The only way to get through is to wear the "baseball vs. Bobcats" article by Bob Deck in last week's issue.

The following is about missing hot water, a broken pipe and the disappearance of emergency lights at the Scott Hall dormitory and at the Scott Hall dormitory.

Pope Hall students returning from their spring vacation discovered that there was only hot water from 8 a.m. until 7:15 a.m. The maintenance crew reported to a few of the dormitory residents that the water problem would be fixed by 9 a.m. The maintenance man stated that the water problem would be fixed by 9 a.m.

The General Education Requirement hearings are still going on, and apparently students are not interested. There have been pleas from Senator Judy Hanley and committee member Christine Quinn for students to attend the committee meetings. However, there have been very little responses.

Students should realize that these hearings will directly affect their future. The purpose of the open hearings is to get student input, so that the re-organization of the GPs will reflect student opinions, not only the faculty. If students do not show up at these hearings, the committee will have little student input to go on when the committee makes the final decisions.

The hearings range from foreign language to the sciences. The Foreign Language hearings have drawn the most attention. However, the others may be of less significance.
