Student Government Associations Elections, more than any other event besides Commencement, signal the closing of yet another school year. Before the students leave for their long awaited (and much deserved) vacation, it is essential that the student body know who makes up their government, for it is their government. Matthew Peter Donohue, newly elected Student Trustee, has been extremely active in student government since he has been at Bridgewater State College. Says Donohue "about the important position of Trustee, I intend to realize the full potential of the student body, I will be setting office hours in the Student Union and report back from the community any time they have ideas, complaints, or suggestions. One of the first things I'm going to get to work on is revising the traffic and parking system. I'm going to work with Student Services in developing a combination behavior discipline is concerned. If I do one thing, I'm going to make sure students are shown out of their dormitories before their judicial board hearings, because in this country, you are innocent until proven guilty and I'm not going to satisfy everyone. I'm looking forward to a great year. I think it's going to be. But I can't do it by myself." Daniel Magoon, former Attorney General of SGA, has been an active student in the Bridgewater State College Student Union, working on behalf of the students. He has been in excess of 20 years of outstanding service on behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Bridgewater State College.

Donahini Resigns

Chief of the Student Court, Debby Morrison announced today the resignation from the Court of Associate Justice Kathy Donahini. Justice Donahini was appointed to the Court by former SGA President Robert Berger and sworn into office with Associate Justice Patrick Monger, the current Chief Justice, at a session of the Senate in September of 1982. A law career aspirant, Justice Donahini worked in the Massachusetts State College Community, serving as Director of Creative Arts, Director and Dean of the Division of Humanities and Creative Arts, he is presently an attorney in the office of the Massachusetts State College Community, serving as Director of Creative Arts, Director and Dean of the Division of Humanities and Creative Arts. "I plan to take a" to realize the full potential of the student body, I will be setting office hours in the Student Union and report back from the community any time they have ideas, complaints, or suggestions. One of the first things I'm going to get to work on is revising the traffic and parking system. I'm going to work with Student Services in developing a combination that is concerned. If I do one thing, I'm going to make sure students are never thrown out of their dormitories before their judicial board hearings, because in this country, you are innocent until proven guilty and I'm not going to satisfy everyone. Last Saturday evening, one of the most distinguished figures in college theatre, Professor Robert J. Barnett, was honored by a dinner from Governor Michael S. Dukakis, marking twenty-five years of outstanding service on behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Bridgewater State College. Professor Barnett was the producer/director of the Ensemble Theatre's acclaimed production of Shakespeare's romantic comedy-drama, "The Tempest." The Ensemble Theatre is the first in the Massachusetts State College System. But his influence extends far beyond Bridgewater, having served as a consultant editor to the Journal of Creative Education, and national and international consultant on Communication and Curriculum, and teacher and administrator in the Vermont State Institute in Buffalo, New York.

Barnett Honored

The senate next year is going to be more productive. We just don't know each other, so we can start to build new friendships. Divisions will be absent mainly because Paul Dobson will not be here. I'm not Paul Dobson - we are going to get things done. They (the senate) didn't like him and the senate didn't want to get anything done. I'm very hopeful."

The issue concerning committees have been key in the Magoon campaign, which means more recognition of the committees by the entire College Community, Magoon said that "I'd like to have a number of seats in the Senate for Commuters, but not come up with a bill. I'm not going to be just a typical member of the Senate for Commuters."

Dear Mr. Editor,

This letter is in support of the commentary about the state of affairs of Bridgewater College’s Athletic Department. I have many years of experience in the athletic department, and it is my belief that there are several areas that need improvement.

Firstly, I believe that the coaching staff is not always given the support they need to succeed. Many of the coaches are overworked and underappreciated for their hard work.

Additionally, I feel that the facilities are not always up to standards. The gymnasium is often overcrowded, and the equipment is not always in good condition.

Finally, I believe that the administration does not always listen to the concerns of the coaches and athletes.

Thank you for your time and consideration of this letter.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Dear Mr. Editor,

This letter is in support of the commentary about the state of affairs of Bridgewater State College’s Athletic Department. I have been a member of the athletic department for many years and I feel a strong need to bring attention to some issues that have been neglected.

I have noticed a significant decline in the morale and performance of the athletes. Many of them are leaving early due to lack of support and resources. The facilities are outdated and the coaching staff is not adequately trained. The team is struggling to compete at a high level and the students are feeling unsupported.

I urge you to take this matter seriously and work towards improving the situation. It is important for our students to have the opportunity to participate in sports and physical activity. Let’s work together to make a positive change.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to express my concern about the state of our athletic department. Over the past few years, we have seen a decline in performance and a decrease in resources. The facilities are in need of repair and the coaching staff is not adequately trained.

I believe that our students deserve better. They work hard and deserve the opportunity to participate in sports and physical activity. Let’s work together to make a positive change.

Sincerely,

A Dazzling Way To End The Season

By John J. Beaton

For those who had seen Shakespeare's Tempest at last year's outdoor production on Friday Night Fever's spring production of The Tempest, it was sheer delight, for those who had never seen it before, it was a revelation. The Tempest, under the direction of Prof. Richard Ricciardi, a dazzling way to end the season.

Professor Barnett's directorial interpretation of The Tempest was rather different. It was to say the least. He took the part of Prospero the Magician (Christopher Harwood, Mark DeAngelis, Patrick Beyer, Margaret Coutinho, Ken Blanchard who arranged a lovely performance), and the ship's crew (Christopher Harwood, Mark DeAngelis, Patrick Beyer, Margaret Coutinho, Ken Blanchard who arranged a lovely performance) as a spontaneous, almost self-possessed performer. His presence on the stage materialized the illusion of everyone watching. Just as fascinating to watch was Jeff Kovic, her innocent and pure Miranda contrasted with Kadra's dominating characteristics.

Most mesmerizing performance was that of Cyril Barton (Cyril Barton). His delightful portrayal of Caliban (Karl Benson), the rightful Duke of Alonzo (Eric Longworth), was a bit of an ego trip at first, but he knew his role as a servant, and the ship's crew (Christopher Harwood, Mark DeAngelis, Patrick Beyer, Margaret Coutinho, Ken Blanchard who arranged a lovely performance) as a spontaneous, almost self-possessed performer. His presence on the stage materialized the illusion of everyone watching. Just as fascinating to watch was Jeff Kovic, her innocent and pure Miranda contrasted with Kadra's dominating characteristics.

The best interpretation of the evening came in the form of William Kadra (Cyril Barton). His delightful portrayal of Caliban (Karl Benson), the rightful Duke of Alonzo (Eric Longworth), was a bit of an ego trip at first, but he knew his role as a servant, and the ship's crew (Christopher Harwood, Mark DeAngelis, Patrick Beyer, Margaret Coutinho, Ken Blanchard who arranged a lovely performance) as a spontaneous, almost self-possessed performer. Since this is the last issue of The Comment for this semester and because it is my last semester on this campus, I'd like to reflect back on four years of music. Working at WHAM has exposed me to many different types of music as well as many different bands. I'd like to take this time now to bine all that info, which was the best of my college days.

1. U2 — What needs to be said about these Irishmen? By far my favorite band. They pay simple but inspiring songs; Catch a Falling Star is one of my favorite songs.

2. Eurythmics — Annie Lennox's voice sends chills down my spine. I'd have to say that this band is amazing.

For this issue of The Comment, our music feature is not limited to rock bands. We have also included a variety of shows from the arts to celebrate the end of the year.

Cora Miller's Dance Gem

By Claire L. Mallet

Cora Anderson Miller, Professor of Dance in Theatre Arts, has done it again. On Thursday, May 10, the Student Union Ballroom was transformed into an environment that is full of energy, creativity, and true expression. For the first time in many years, the students of this department were able to showcase their talents on stage.

The program began with a lively and rhythmic opening number performed by the student dancers. This was followed by an innovative and thought-provoking piece that explored themes of identity and self-discovery. The dance then transitioned into a more intimate and personal piece, highlighting the emotional depth of the performers. The final number was a dynamic and energetic finale that left the audience breathless.

As with many of Cora Miller's performances, this one was a true celebration of the human body and its potential. Each dancer brought something unique to the table, whether it was their physical ability or their emotional expression. The result was a stunning and memorable performance that left a lasting impression on all who witnessed it.

The next performance featured a group of students from the dance program, who presented a piece that was both technically impressive and emotionally poignant. The dancers moved fluidly and gracefully, expressing the depth of their feelings through their movements.

The program concluded with a performance by Cora Miller herself, who at age 80 is still going strong! Her dance was a testament to the power of the human spirit and the enduring nature of dance as an art form.

In conclusion, this was an incredible evening that celebrated the beauty and potential of dance. The performances were a true testament to the talent and dedication of the students and faculty of the Theatre Arts department. We look forward to next year's performance and the continued growth and development of the program.
Cora Miller A Dance Gem
By Claire L. Mallette

Cora Anderson Miller, Professor of Dance at The College of William & Mary, has been a mainstay of the dance community in the Williamsburg area for many years. She has taught at the college for over 30 years and has been instrumental in establishing the dance department as one of the leading programs in the country.

Miller's teaching style is both rigorous and nurturing, encouraging her students to explore their own physical and artistic boundaries. She has a deep understanding of the dance form and a passion for sharing it with her students.

This semester, Miller is teaching a new course on contemporary dance, which explores the intersection of dance and visual art. The course combines techniques from various styles of dance with elements of painting, sculpture, and video art to create a unique performance experience.

Miller's dedication to her craft and her commitment to her students is evident in the way she approaches her teaching. She is always looking for new ways to challenge and inspire her students, and her classes are known for their creativity and vitality.

Miller's influence on the dance community in Williamsburg is immeasurable. She has been a mentor to countless students, many of whom have gone on to successful careers in dance and related fields. Her contribution to the arts in Williamsburg and beyond cannot be overstated.

If you have never had the opportunity to see Miller's work, now is the time. Her upcoming performance is sure to be a highlight of the season.

Flynn Draws Low Attendance

Flynn, who is running against incumbent District Attorney Joseph A. Conley and Eliot Richardson for the Massachusetts Attorney General seat, is an alumnus of BSC and is a member of the Board of Trustees. Unfortunately, few members of the faculty, administration, or students who came to the event on Thursday were receptive to the Judge's speech and were instead underwhelmed by the presentation.

Flynn has been announced that Elliot Richardson will not be accepting "Paid money," but it is not clear whether he is referring to the money that is not being accepted by any other banks.

Conclusion: Flynn's announcement is a signal event in the history of the Commonwealth's courts.

Plymouth County Sheriff

Thursday, May 10, 1984

In a recent effort to raise the profile of his department, Sheriff Flynn has been running against incumbent John A. George for the Plymouth County Sheriff's seat. Flynn is an alumnus of BSC and is a member of the Board of Trustees. Unfortunately, he is not the only candidate running for the seat.

The Sheriff's recently announced the resignation of his administrative assistant, John A. George, following a lengthy internal investigation. Flynn has been named as the new administrative assistant, and several members of the administration and administration plus students have been appointed.

Flynn has been in office for a few months now, and the new employee is making strides in his position. "I am very excited to work with John A. George, and I believe he is the right person for the job," Flynn said. "He brings a wealth of experience to the role, and I am confident he will be an asset to the department."

When Professor Joanne Wuschké joined the faculty in the Department of Speech Communication, Theatre, Arts and Communication Disorders in the fall of 1971, she brought with her a rich background from which to draw in her teaching. Included had been time spent as Director of Girls and Women's Activities at the University of the Virgin Islands and Director of the Speech and Language Clinic at the Central United Methodist Church and at the University School of Education. In each of these settings she had had the opportunity to apply her theoretical training in real situations and to work with clients and families on a personal level.

Professor Wuschké is the beneficiary of the Communication Disorders Program. She has provided major contributions to the design and development of the curriculum and the subsequent reality required to meet state certification and licensing guidelines. She is known as a constructive problem-solver, an energetic, stimulating, and purposeful colleague.

In addition to utilizing films, articles, readings and the Professor invites people with speech, language, or hearing disorders such as stutterers, language, cleft palates, and persons with cerebral palsy to talk with her classes to talk about their handicaps. They deal with problems, and how to the clientele they are planning to serve. She is well respected by professionals in her field and each course is carefully planned and continually reviewed, renewed, and updated. Her lessons are designed on several levels to accommodate differences in learning style among her students.

During the course of a day you may find her in her office, in the cafeteria, or in the library — but always with students. She is an effective, caring and empathetic counselor. She has a strong sense of reality and an ability to provide students with the proper challenges and supports needed for growth. She communicates her goals and objectives clearly and with wit, humor, and style so that both interactions with students and meetings are equal sharing.

Professor Joanne Wuschké approaches dealing with real and a rare person with a great deal of respect for each student. Rather than the hidden messages, "like me", her clear message to students is "Learn to like yourself, to do what you do, and take pleasure in working hard in order to do what you want to do."

This is the model of a good teacher — and our good friend.

the Department of Speech Arts, and Communication Disorders. In the fall of 1971, she was named Professor of Speech and Language Clinical Services at Boston University. She has been a member of the faculty at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, since 1972. Joanne Wuschke earned her Ph.D. from Clark University in 1966, and has been a member of the faculty at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, since 1972. She has also served as a speech pathologist at the Boston Medical Center, and as a clinical instructor at the Boston University School of Education. In 1970, she was promoted to the rank of Professor of Speech and Language Clinical Services at Boston University. Joanne Wuschke is a past recipient of the Teaching Award from the University of Massachusetts, Boston, and has received numerous honors and recognitions for her contributions to the field of speech and language pathology.

Joanne Wuschke is a highly skilled clinician and educator who has made significant contributions to the field of speech and language pathology. She is known for her innovative teaching methods and her commitment to excellence in education. She has a strong sense of humor and a passion for teaching, which make her a beloved colleague and mentor to many students.

Joanne Wuschke is also a prolific writer and researcher, with numerous publications to her credit. She is a member of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association and is active in numerous professional organizations. Her research interests include the use of technology in teaching and learning, and the role of speech-language pathology in community-based settings.

In addition to her teaching and research activities, Joanne Wuschke is a dedicated clinician who has worked with clients of all ages and backgrounds. She has a special interest in working with children and young adults, and has developed many innovative strategies for assessing and treating speech and language disorders.

Joanne Wuschke is a true model of excellence in teaching, and her contributions to the field of speech and language pathology are widely recognized and appreciated. She is a true professional who is dedicated to helping students achieve their full potential and make substantial contributions to the field of speech and language pathology.

While automobile transportation is often needed it is not essential that all participants have one as the sharing concept is stressed. The main location of the workshop is at Tenants Harbor, a five hour drive from Boston. Direct service from Logan Airport to Owls Head (Rockland) is available daily (45 mins.) from Bar Harbor Airlines.

Field Trips

Opportunities for field trips relate to such time-established art colonies as Haystack School of Art as well as galleries and museums (Farnsworth in Rockland, Bowdoin College, Portland Museum of Art, and the Maine Photographic Workshop). Further locations of interest would be the Olson Estate (Andrew Wyeth's Christina's World), Monhegan Island, and the network of islands adjacent to the coast.

Ladonna makes the play.

This past year has been stimulating for the variety sports program here at Bridgewater State. As can be seen by the number of titles already won in the Kelly Gym, other years of accomplishments, and athletic accomplishments will add even more to the list.

The fall season was highlighted by the women's sports with the field hockey team winning the ECAC Division III Championship (15-4-3), and the volleyball team (28-16) winning the MAC, which took a first at RIC and four seconds at the Northeastern, Bryant, SMU, and Codfish Invitational.

The winter season was led by the women's basketball team, that went to the NCAA Regional tournament, in the second year in a row while competing in the (D-3) season. The men's swim team (7-2) had their best season in ten years. They had their best in the New England team, that went and sent two swimmers to the nationals. The wrestling squad (8-8) had their best season, placing third at two in the New England.

The spring season was led by the women's softball team, that went to the NCAA. The field hockey team (17-5) led by the lady rugger's skill and speed.

The Women's Rugby team continued their undefeated season with the end being the N.H. St. Paul Grill Rugby team.

The Women's Rugby team continued their undefeated season with the N.H. St. Paul Grill Rugby team.

Scoring for Bridgewater was Mary Lovett and Debbie "D." Remillard. Not only did they win the game, but also the last year, with the Rugger's skill and speed.

Congratulations ladies on a super season! Shorts - FRANK, your Gituff - Remember - be kind to animals - kiss a rugby player.

The BSC Women's softball team was invited to the NCAA Regionals this year. Their final record was 20-6 and enough to earn them the MAC-DC tournament championship (11-1-1). The girls were 11-1-1 of last Thursday and then swept two games from Mass Maritime on the same day, winning by final scores of 25-0 and 2-0. The girls went on with their State winning the first game, 4-0, and then losing the second by a score of 2-0. After that, they took yet another doubleheader, this time from North Adams. State 7-0 and 6-0. In the last two games of the season, the girls lost a doubleheader to Hampden State College, 3-2 and 9-4. This was the first time all season that they played a game of 10 or more runs.

Trainer Peter Krassner cites the team as "overwhelmed." When asked to comment on the team's success, he says, "The pitching and hitting have been there pretty much." With talents such as Denise Dusek and Janice Palamara, it is no wonder that opponents average only 1.7 points per game against them. Jill Barnes also displays superb catching abilities, and has proven her worth to the team by calling the games above and beyond the call of duty.

The BSC Women’s softball team has been invited to the NCAA Regional tournament. Their final record was 20-4-1, which was enough to earn them the MASCAC Championship title (11-1).

The girls were 15-1-1 last Thursday, and then swept the third series from Mass Maritime on the same day, claiming a final score of 35-0 and 2-0. The girls then split with Salem State, winning the first game, 4-0, and then losing the second by a score of 2-0. After that, they took yet another doubleheader, this time from North Adams, 7-0 and 6-0. In the last two games of the season, the girls lost, but a doubleheader to Salem College, 3-2 and 9-4. Nonetheless, after all their previous winnings, they moved on to the NCAA tournament, qualifying for the Regional tournament.

Trainer Peter Kranzer criticizes the team this year as “overwhelming.” When asked to comment on the team’s success, he says, “The pitching and hitting have been nearly perfect.” With talent such as Delores Dusseault and Janice Pistorino, it is no wonder that opponents average only 1.7 points per game against them. Jill Barnes also displays superb catching abilities, and has proven her worth to the team by calling the games above and beyond the call of duty.

There is more to this team than that, however. The defense is near perfect. There have been fewer mistakes than expected, including several hard to get outs. Getting back to the pitching, the Lady Bears is on form, as observed by the fans. Deidre Ellis makes splendid catches, and the hard knockers never failed.

Scoring for Bridgewater was Mary Lou Mcintire and Debbie B. “B.” Remillard. Not only did they score, but they also scored the best season ever, and thus the team was voted the worst party in Mass. Maritime.

Bears Business

By Mike Storey

With the semester soon coming to an end, basketball is a big story in the sports world this year. Last year, the B.S.C. women's basketball team captured the Division III Northeast Regional Championship. The team will return to the NCAA Division III basketball tournament this year, and there are high hopes for this year's team. The women's basketball team has been working hard throughout the year, and their efforts are paying off. The team has been practicing diligently, and their hard work is paying off. With the NCAA tournament on the horizon, the team is looking forward to making a strong showing.

When we think of the concept of "Lady Bears," we often think of women's basketball, but there is so much more to it. Our Lady Bears are53 heroes off the court as well as on it. This week, we would like to highlight some of the women who have been making a difference in their communities and on the court. From coaching to fundraising, these women are true role models. They are using their platform to make a positive impact.

As I reach for my turntable, the needle is poised above the spinning record, ready to be released into the world of music. The anticipation builds, and I hold my breath, waiting for the first notes to fill the room. The needle touches the record, and the music begins. It's a moment of pure joy, a symphony of sound that transports me to a place of peace and tranquility.

With the semester soon coming to an end, the concept of being a student-athlete is not something that many may consider, but many have had the opportunity to experience the 4-year battle that many student-athletes experience every year. For the 1983-84 season, the BSC men's track team had a difficult year. Despite the challenges, the team had some bright spots. The team went undefeated for the spring season, ending in a 5-4 win over Maritime. The team also saw some growth with the addition of new players.

This past weekend the men's track team travelled to Fitchburg State College in Fitchburg, Massachusetts for the New England Track and Field Championships. Qualifying through competition, the team went on to compete in the NEC (America East) Championships. The team finished 11th out of 14 teams in the NEC meet.

This coming weekend the men's team will travel to Fitchburg State College for the New England Championships. Two weeks later, those who qualified for the regionals (Afred Brown, Andreou Broussard) will be competing in the NEC and the regionals meet. The men's team will be looking to improve their standings at the national meet.

Settled on the 19th

Sports...

The men's BSC lacrosse team wrapped up their regular season on Thursday, May 10. The team won their final home game against MIT, 12-11. The team finished the season with a 7-9 record. The team's next game will be on Saturday, May 26, against Tufts University.

Student Government Associations Elections: more than any other event besides Commencement, graduation, and closing of yet another school year. Before the students leave for their long awaited (and much deserved) vacation, it is essential that the student body know who makes up their government, for it is their government. Matthew Peter Donoghue, newly elected Student Trustee, has been extremely active in student government since he has been at BRSC. Says Donoghue about the important position as Trustee, "I stood to realize the full potential of student trustees. I will be setting office hours in the Student Center on Tuesday's so everyone can hear-from community any time they have ideas, complaints, or suggestions. One of the first things I'm going to get to work on is revising the traffic and parking policy. I'm going to work with Student Services in developing a consistent policy as far as dormitory behavior discipline is concerned. If I do one thing, I'm going to make sure students are never thrown out of their dormitories before their judicial board hearings, because in this country, you are innocent until proven guilty. Bridgewater State College's honor system is somehow different. I'm looking forward to a great year. I hope it's going to be. But I can't do it by myself." Daniel Magoon, former Attorney General of SGA, won the presidency of the SGA after a close race with Cisco Menezes. When asked about his plans in the Senate and what he plans on doing, Magoon stated, "I don't know what I can do, I just be productive. Listen to everyone and get their input. I'm not going to satisfy everyone."

The senate next year is going to be more productive. We just don't know each other, so we can start over and build new friendships. Dissions will be absent mainly because Paul Dobson will not be here. I'm not Paul Dobson, we are not going to do anything done. They (the senate) didn't like him and the senate didn't want to get anything done. I'm very hopeful ... The issues concerning community have been key in the Magoon campaign (which means more recognition of the committees by the entire College Community). Magoon said that "I'll like to have a number of seats in the Senate. All the community has to be up with a bunch of community, but I will next year." In closing, Magoon expressed his pleasure on winning the election and thanks the individuals who supported him.

Dad Carrellas, who has been an active member of the SGA, was elected as the First-Vice President of the SGA meetings. As one who attends the SGA meetings, they can become more well known.
