MORNING TICKETS?!

Thursday night April 18 was just like any other Thursday night but with one exception. The parking lot was filled with cars, and parked it at Scott Hall parking lot and walked to the Friday night. After a few beers shared with good friends I found myself slightly under the influence. I used my better judgment and decided to choose to get a ride home from a friend.

At 11:30 I went back to the parking lot to retrieve my car. I couldn’t find it at 11:36 a.m. I had retrieval tickets for parking in one of the staff areas. I explained the situation to the police officer and was told that I was in a fault for parking in this area and I should be parked in the lower lot. My parents’ question was, ‘What difference would this make for me to park in the lower lot at night?’

MEMORIAL

As you all know, we are in the process of developing the Wilam Schmeidel memorial. William was murdered while working for the Sports Reporter and was planning to graduate with the class of 1986. He got along very well with almost everyone that he came into contact with. He had chosen great people and his death is a great loss to all of us.

Thank you again.

We offer you

Today’s the day! Monday: Thank you for reading The Comment.

I’d like to bring a question to your attention. If you could only have one drink and one snack, what would they be?

I’m sure there are many people who have not been asked this question. I’m curious to see what answers you come up with.

Today’s Monday, and I’m feeling a little under the weather. I was hoping to get a few hours of sleep this weekend, but I woke up feeling like I had a cold.

The Comment office is open today from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to come by.

The questionnaires concerning the student budget this semester has awakened an awareness of how to proceed in the future. These questionnaires have been made by the athletic budget to present a budget in secret and without the input of students and coaches. While I think this was a mistake, it would now indicate otherwise. According to the forms, the athletic department does not have an inventory of the supplies the department already has and/or cookmg as a concentration. Although a good many people would prefer for the next season, as well as the competition, to supply what we need for the individual schools, I do not think the athletic department will part with the report of the equipment mixer. Finally, they have a reason to continue the same for all the expenditures necessary or recommended for the next year. At the point decisions must be made by them where to cut. The decision is presented to the AFC, the athletic budget this semester. It has been accepted by the AFC. The budget will be presented to the Executive Committee for the 1985-1986 academic year. It has been accepted by the AFC and the Executive Committee for the 1985-1986 academic year.

ZEN AND THE ART OF ROOM CLEANING

By Steve O'Brien
Contributing Writer

My room is a mess. Now I'm at a loss for the simplest things to do. I'm stuck in front of a computer break, thinking about how to keep my room tidy. I'm the last person in the office to get a new computer. I've been waiting for months.

—but I'm not the only one. My roommate, Dave, is also stuck in front of a computer. He's been waiting for months, too. I'm not sure if he's thinking about how to keep his room tidy or if he's just working on his computer all day.

Old business concerned the final passage of twelve amendments to the SGA constitution as submitted by the Legislative Affairs Committee. The motions included an amendment to the student honor code and the creation of a new committee for the academic affairs. The new business concerned the selection of a new SGA president. The vote was unanimous for Mark Thompson.

P.S. Not to all Committee Members: For final adoption of changes in our student constitution, you must be present at the next meeting on April 23, 1985.

State Student Association of Massachusetts

By Matthew Peter Donoghue
New Editor

On President's Day 1985, shortly before the speakers began their talk, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House announced the formation of the new Student Association of Massachusetts. The Senate President, Michael S. Donoghue, and the Speaker of the House, Richard J. King, introduced the new organization to the Senate and the House members.

The Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM) was formed to bring student representatives from all over the state together to address common issues facing Massachusetts students. The organization includes representatives from all levels of higher education, from high schools to universities.

The SSAM was created in response to the need for a stronger voice for Massachusetts students in the legislative process. The organization aims to promote student interests and to provide a forum for discussing and advocating for student concerns.

The SSAM is a non-partisan organization that operates independently of any political party. It is governed by a board of directors elected by the student representatives.

Note: This is a sample of the content extracted from the document.
The runners began their marathon by 5 a.m. Monday morning. The organization is comprised of students, faculty, and staff who have a common interest in the advancement of higher education. The meeting was held in the Regent's Room at the Massachusetts State House, where the Massachusetts State legislature meets.

During the meeting, the Student Government Association (SSAM) presented a resolution that would allow students to register to vote at the polls. The resolution was passed unanimously.

Senator Michael Ferrigno, who represents the 2nd District, spoke in support of the resolution. He said that it was important for students to have a voice in the political process.

Other speakers included Governor Dukakis, who gave a keynote speech, and Senator George Keverian, who also spoke in support of the resolution.

The meeting was well-attended, with many students, faculty, and staff present. The organization is growing in strength and influence, and is working hard to ensure that the voices of students are heard in the political process.
The first place to take us into 1985 was the first place to take us into. The music that set the tone for the evening, and the one that set the tone for the entire evening, was the song "In the Name of Love," which was performed by the band U2. This song is a powerful statement against the arms race and has become a key to their attraction to their audience because they have used their music to make a statement.

Drum thuds. July 15. The show began with a bang, and the audience was drawn into the song's energy. The song was followed by "New Year's Day," which is a powerful statement about the hopeful future that the band wanted to bring to the world.

Jazz Cats Prove Cool

Morning Edition

Jazz is alive and well here at Bridgeport, thanks to Dr. Vincent Montemurro of the music department. On Friday, April 19th, the Vincent Gigante Jazz Band performed a major league job to an enthusiastic audience in the Rec Hall. This was an energetic and dynamic performance.

Among the performers were members of the college Band, several soloists, and, of course, Dr. Gigante himself. The band consisted of a variety of instruments, including the soprano saxophone, the trumpet, the trombone, the French horn, the clarinet, and the drums. The music was a blend of swing and bebop, with an occasional foray into the standards genre.

The stage was well lit, with a lot of movement and energy. The audience was highly engaged, with many people dancing and enjoying the music.

The performance concluded with a rendition of "Take Five," a jazz standard that is popular among jazz fans.

Overall, the performance was a resounding success and a testament to the talent and hard work of the musicians involved.

Jazz is alive and well here at Bridgewater, thanks to Dr. Vince Gannon, the music department. On Friday, April 19th, the Vince Gannon Jazz Band performed a major league jam session to an enthusiastic audience in the Rathskellar. Among the performers were members of the college Band, several non-students, and Dr. Gannon himself. Each performer genuinely complemented the others and beaming faces from members of the college audience in the Rathskellar. Dr. Gannon himself. Each performer contributed to the team effort in pumping out an incredibly energetic performance.

Some of the popular tunes the group blasted out included mad Monk, Bird/and, Matty, Blue Bossa, Honeymoon Street, First and Blues Around the Block.

The 1985 Heritage Day Parade of Bridgewater State College will open at noon on Saturday from the parking lot at Great Hill. This year, more student groups will be invited to participate than ever before.

Competing for the President's Cup Grand Prize and $100 award, as well as other prizes, will be 18 floats from various student clubs, classes, residence halls, fraternities and sororities, and campus organizations.

In addition to all of their floats, there will be bands, including one marching band from Portsmouth, R.I. and antique cars, fire trucks, horses and buggies, and more, says Andrea McKeown, Class of '85, who is the parade coordinator.

Last year Andrea was part of the team from Pope Hall that won the President's Cup Grand Prize for best float entry. Here is a list of student groups which have already signed up for this year's parade:

Scott Hall
Pope Hall
Cheerleaders
Woodward Hall
S-A-M. Society for the Advancement of Management

Athletics
Chi Alpha
Phi Beta Sigma
Alpha Epsilon Phi
Burgundy Oma
Sigma Chi
Choral Class
Class of 1985
Class of 1987
Class of 1988
On Tuesday, April 23, at 10 a.m., there will be a mandatory meeting for all groups participating in room 305, Pope Hall. Each group should send a representative to the meeting or call campus extension 1335 to make alternative arrangements.

The Heritage Day Parade will be sponsored by the Campus Services Office at campus extension 315. Last minute will be accepted for any student group who may wish to enter the competition.

"We're very grateful to the Student Government Association," says Ms. David Wilson, Director of Community Services, whose office organizes the parade each year. "The SGAs provides the bulk of the funding with considerable help from the Board of College, as we are making the parade possible. It has become the largest college parade in New England. The idea originated with the SGAs President in 1982, Bill Maloney, and the Student Government has been the parade's biggest benefactor.

The parade will assemble at the Great Hill Parking Lot on Saturday morning and proceed to Pope Hall, home of the SGAs, where the parade begins. It will end at Pope Hall and the SGAs will meet there to discuss the parade's events.

The parades begin at the Town Common and move through the streets of Bridgewater, where the judges invited by the College will carefully look over each group's float.

The parade swings on to the College Quadrangle, and in the parade's conclusion, an awards ceremony will be held in the woods of Pope Hall, where the winners will be announced. For more parade information, call the Campus Services Office at campus extension 315. Last minute will be accepted for any student group who may wish to enter the competition.

The parades begin at the Town Common and move through the streets of Bridgewater, where the judges invited by the College will carefully look over each group's float.

The parade swings on to the College Quadrangle, and in the parade's conclusion, an awards ceremony will be held in the woods of Pope Hall, where the winners will be announced. For more parade information, call the Campus Services Office at campus extension 315. Last minute will be accepted for any student group who may wish to enter the competition.
The 1985 Heritage Day Parade of Bridgewater State College steps off at noon this coming Saturday from the parking lot at Great Hill, and this year more student groups will be involved than ever before.

Competing for the President’s Cup Grand Prize and $150 cash, as well as other prizes, will be 18 floats from various student clubs, classes, residence halls, fraternities and sororities, and campus organizations.

In addition to all of these floats, there will be three bands — including one marching band from Portsmouth, Rhode Island with 150 members all by itself — and antique cars, fire trucks, horses and buggies, and more," says Andrea Kaufman, Class of '85, who is the parade coordinator.

Last year Andrea was part of the team from Pope Hall that won the President’s Cup Grand Prize for best float entry.

Here is a list of student groups which have already signed up for this year's parade:

- Scott Hall
- Pope Hall
- Shea/Durgin
- Woodward Hall
- S.T.Ll. Program Committee
- Ensemble Theatre
- S.A.M. (Society for the Advancement of Management)
- Athletics
- Chi Alpha
- Phi Beta Sigma
- Sigma Chi
- Chess Club
- Class of 1985
- Class of 1987
- Class of 1988

On Tuesday, April 23, at 11:00 a.m., there will be a mandatory meeting for groups participating in room 36, Boyden Hall. Each group should send a representative to the meeting or call campus extension 1335 to make arrangements.

We're very grateful to the Student Government Association," says Mr. David Wilson, Director of Community Services, whose office organizes the parade each year. "The SGA provides the bulk of the funding with considerable help from the College as well to make this parade possible. It has become the largest college parade in New England. The idea originated with the SGA President in 1982, Bill Mullen, and the Student Government has been the parade's biggest booster.

The parade will assemble at the Great Hill Parking Lot on Saturday morning, and precisely at 11:00 a.m. from Parade Marshal Denis Lawrence, Jr., the SGA President, will give the signal as each SGA President has done before him and the parade will begin moving down Burrill Avenue.

It will wind left on Plymouth Street by Smudin's then right on Hale Street. The parade then swings left again to the College Quadrangle, and the parade's conclusion, an awards ceremony will be held on the steps of Boyden Hall, where the prize winners will be announced.

For more parade information, call the Community Services Office at campus extension 1335. Late entries will be accepted for any student group who may wish to enter the competition.

It’s that time of the year again when you need to start getting in shape. And no, it’s not for those few weeks before the third weekend in June. It’s time to get in shape for the upcoming basketball season. To help you get started, here are some tips on how to get in shape for the upcoming basketball season.

1. Start by setting a goal. What do you want to achieve? Are you looking to lose weight, improve your endurance, or get ready for a specific tournament?
2. Plan your workouts. Decide how many days a week you want to work out and what types of exercises you will do.
3. Warm up. Before each workout, do some stretching and light cardio to prepare your body for exercise.
4. Cool down. After each workout, do some stretching and light cardio to help your body recover.
5. Stay hydrated. Drink plenty of water before, during, and after your workouts.
6. Get enough sleep. Make sure you get enough rest to help your body recover.
7. Stay motivated. Find ways to stay motivated, such as setting small goals, tracking your progress, or finding a workout buddy.

A combination of rights and jobs has ended the crowning of the senior class honors this year. The Boston College Marvins Marvin Hagler. His third round TKO took a little too long. The referee had to be called in after Hagler ended all doubt against Sugar Ray once again. Hagler is now looking to be the most of out, including Hagler, if the fights abide contracts, will break that report. It is a sure bet that Hagler will be returning to the ring. The last might possibly be Roberta Harris, or Hector "Macho" Camacho, who was at the fight now.

He was going to go in for 125, but that was one for 167. The referee decided not to go forward. Nodding off the point, the referee was in a hurry. Hagler, and the others, on the other hand, have done that. Hagler didn’t want to waste any time. The reference took the point, and Hagler repeated his demand at 167.

Also, the referee made a critical mistake. The referee saw that Hagler was in and the other guy was in. He didn’t want to make the decision to take the first round.

The referee saw the decision, and Hagler didn’t want to lose the first round. Hagler got off a big right hand, and Hagler repeated his demand at 167.

PR 305 MEDICAL ETHICS structures some of the key moral questions that arise in the practice of medicine. It considers the nature of medical knowledge and the nature of the patient-physician relationship. It addresses the ethical issues of medicine as they relate to the elderly and the terminally ill. It is designed for students interested in health-care ethics, especially medical ethics. Does it have moral implications for mental health?

PL 302 GREAT PHILOSOPHERS is a survey of European philosophical systems of Kant, Schopenhauer, and other great metaphysical traditions with a focus on Western thought. This course begins with a survey of Kant's proto-knowledge and includes an examination of the questions that Kant's philosophy raises about the nature of knowledge and the metaphysics of mental and physical reality. The course concludes with an examination of the nature of metaphysics and its role in contemporary thinking about the nature of the world.

PL 322 PHILOSOPHY OF LAW focuses on the nature of law and its purpose in order to address questions such as: Is the law a social construct? Is it based on individual liberty? How does it function as a tool of social control? The course will be taught in colloquium format, with some readings from classical and contemporary thinkers.

PL 402 PROBLEMS OF EXPERIENCE, KNOWLEDGE, AND PERCEPTION explores some of the central issues of the philosophy of knowledge as they relate to the nature of our perceptions and knowledge. The course begins with an examination of the nature of perception and the nature of knowledge. It also explores the role of perceptual and knowledge in our understanding of the world.

FEMALE STUDENT Vanishes

A female student at the Bridgewater State College has vanished, according to reports from the campus police. The woman, who has not been identified, was last seen in the library around 3 p.m. on Monday.

Queries to Campus Police have yielded little information, and the police are now appealing for the public's assistance. Anyone with information is urged to contact the police at 584-8255.

A poster is being circulated across the campus, and the police have set up a booth in the Student Center for anyone who wishes to provide information.

Please be cautious and help us find her. Any information will be greatly appreciated.

Moakley on Financial Aid

With all the talk about maintaining a strong national defense, it came as a bit of a shock to us when Massachusetts Senator Moakley proposed fiscal 1986 education requests which would not only cut $3.1 billion out of the nation’s highest spending education request, but would do so in a way that most significantly impacts higher education— and not only public institutions.

The arm’s-length defense makes more sense than the arm’s-length military. It includes an arm of knowledge, a term that must be trained and nurtured for more than just bombs.

Moakley believes that public keen intellects are a commodity in the arsenal. He plans to make budget requests which would entail cuts—cuts that would significantly affect higher education and put many students at risk of being barred from attending a college or university.

He has challenged the waste in our national defense.

Federal education budget programs (FSEAP) and Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) recipients. The administration’s proposals to limit eligibility for the GSL, to those with an income of $22,500 or less, would cut $3.0 billion in federal aid to students. This would cut $22,500 in federal aid to students.

He is committed to spending $22,500 in federal aid to students.

Without a doubt some federal spending is needed, particularly in the area of military spending which has gone from $34.3 billion to $27.7 billion for fiscal 1986.

There is a great deal of waste and inefficiency that can be cut from this area. Reviewing our youth to handle the problems of the future, which promises to be even more challenging than what we’re currently facing.

At any rate, our nation’s problems require intelligent solutions.

Moakley on Financial Aid

With all the talk about maintaining a strong national defense, it came as a bit of a shock to us when Massachusetts Senator Moakley proposed fiscal 1986 education requests which would not only cut $3.1 billion out of the nation’s highest spending education request, but would do so in a way that most significantly impacts higher education— and not only public institutions.

The arm’s-length defense makes more sense than the arm’s-length military. It includes an arm of knowledge, a term that must be trained and nurtured for more than just bombs.

Moakley believes that public keen intellects are a commodity in the arsenal. He plans to make budget requests which would entail cuts—cuts that would significantly affect higher education and put many students at risk of being barred from attending a college or university.

He has challenged the waste in our national defense.

Federal education budget programs (FSEAP) and Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) recipients. The administration’s proposals to limit eligibility for the GSL, to those with an income of $22,500 or less, would cut $3.0 billion in federal aid to students. This would cut $22,500 in federal aid to students.

He is committed to spending $22,500 in federal aid to students.

Without a doubt some federal spending is needed, particularly in the area of military spending which has gone from $34.3 billion to $27.7 billion for fiscal 1986.

There is a great deal of waste and inefficiency that can be cut from this area. Reviewing our youth to handle the problems of the future, which promises to be even more challenging than what we’re currently facing.

At any rate, our nation’s problems require intelligent solutions.

Moakley on Financial Aid

With all the talk about maintaining a strong national defense, it came as a bit of a shock to see what Massachusetts' Governor proposed fiscal 1986 education budget, which provides for a reduction of $7.1 billion out of the nation's highest education budget.

The arm national defense means more than the cost of six aircraft carriers. It includes an array of know-how that has a strategic logic that must be sustained and maintained to ensure good, indeed, our security.

In this dangerous and complex world, bright and talented people are a commodity that we cannot afford to settle. A losing peace will only win with minds, not bullets.

The being the case, we are dismayed that the new education budget proposal neglects the crucial link to our national defense. Even more disturbing were the words of our new Education Secretary, William Benetton. We believe the proposal is unnecessary. Our cases will only request more diversion, automobile diversion, and three weeks at the beach diversion.

Such cynical and out-of-touch conclusions, of course, make the questions the true priorities behind the new budget. It is important to know that the administration's ultimate goal is to elect a few students to Harvard. These students will be guaranteed 41 percent of these tuition fees from continuing in the program.

The budget audit is a major priority facing the country, and we fail to agree that it must be reduced to an acceptable level. The massive budget deficit of the past four years has nearly doubled our national debt. If they are allowed to continue at the present rate, this staggering debt could double again to nearly $2 trillion in the next decade.

Without a doubt some federal spending must be cut, particularly in the area of military spending which has gone from $4.5 billion in budget cuts to $2.7 billion for fiscal 1986. The increase of 54 to 55 trillion, alone, will be rearranged from the education budget of their choice or perhaps any post-secondary institution at all, not by their ability, but by the federal government's unwillingness to award more than $200 annually to any one student. If the answer to these questions is obviously and undeniably no, then we have learned anything.

From the day he crossed into his path, he could do nothing but see the hands of fate slipping away. He swerved to avoid it. There was nothing he could have done to save himself. He was trapped in the arms of a new. The driver of the other car was unjured but his parents are hurt. My friend, however, suffered multiple injuries and is still in critical condition. The driver of the other car was a sixteen-year-old, who was drunk.

Music Major: Under Consideration

By Mona McKee
WRIR Reporter
Special to The Comment

There are five academic departments of Bridgewater State College currently not accessible for major study. This means that one or two graduates from BSC have been the following departments: Women's Studies, Secondary Education, Religious Studies, and Music. The music department has begun the preliminary work, by asking students to fill out questionnaires. One response given by the majority of the students polled has been that they knew of few or none of students who would have liked Bridge water State, except that there was no music major offered. They are presently unsatisfied schools that do offer the major.

In an interview with the music department the question was asked: why has a music major not been offered. Dr. John Johnson, Chairperson, said, "there had been other attempts but they had been unsuccessful." He also informed that the department is only in the first stages of developing a major. This is called "silent to plan." It consists of writing a proposal, then submitting it to Dr. Robert Dillman, Vice President of Academic Affairs. He will discuss it with the other administrative divisions, which in turn will propose it to the Board of Regents.

When asked how long the process would take Dr. Johnson was helpful. "A year from this September," he answered. In an interview with Dr. Harold Rid gers, who formerly was director of the division Humanities and Fine Arts, music was a part, he stated that the ability to think critically and quantitatively, as well as the ability to locate and process information.

The sub-committee took pain making efforts to include those individuals who would be incremen tal in the revitalization of the GES. They held thirty one open meetings, formed many special task groups, and conducted a survey of alumni, regional employers, students, and faculty.

The proposal, if accepted, would make a second English composition course required for graduation. Among other changes, the music major or minor is required to take 60 credit hours. This would fulfill the requirements for the major or minor, with the additional credit hours to be awarded.

The proposal was sent to the CURRICULUM COMMITTEE and the MUSIC COMMITTEE for consideration. The CURRICULUM COMMITTEE, the music committee, and the Academic Council all have an input into the making of the proposal. In the past, when proposals were presented for consideration, they were usually referred to the Academic Council. However, this time the proposal was referred to the CURRICULUM COMMITTEE, as they are in favor of it.

Other recommendations included in the proposal would be "that double coupling between the academic major and the GES as long as possible should be encouraged, however specific programs with exceptionally high quality may be considered."
