Student regent bill passes Mass legislature

By Brent Rossi

The way has been paved for students to directly involve themselves with the decision making processes at the state level.

On July 26, 1985, the corresponding bill was passed by the Senate on October 22. With the passage of this bill, a student from one of the state colleges will sit on the Massachussetts Board of Regents of Higher Education as an equal voting member. The United States Student Association, headquartered in Washington, call the Student Regents Bill the most progressive student empowerment legislation in the United States.

According to Matthew Donoghue, president of the Student Senate Association of the Student Senate Association (SSAM), the Student Senate Bill states several goals. First, it officially recognizes school student government associations as the representative body of the student body. Second, it recognizes the right to affiliate with another without being considered as "organizations attempting to influence legislation." Third, it provides for a student senate to be heard from, a student from a community college will be selected the first year, a student from a state college the second year, and a student university the third year.

Unknown virus spreads fear at SMU

By Roger Spring

Lice, an organism so small that it is difficult to see with the unaided eye, is spreading a large amount of fear among dormitory residents. "Scott Hall is infested," "our dorm's got lice," "our dorm is next." The rumors, spreading faster than the itchiness, resulted in scramble for epidemic proportions.

However, Judith Deep of Health Services, declared even to call the outbreak "unusual." "I don't know why, but it happens this time every fall." The number of reported head and body lice infestations is not, however, also in grammar and high schools. "Deep continued, "In the last two weeks we've had dozens of students come in with complaints, but only two cases were confirmed. We're giving Out to everyone who asks about, if only to calm their nerves." "Just a precaution. Lice are transferred from one person to another through contact, not by air."

"I don't think it's a question of spreading in several ways. Close physical contact is the most common method, but they can also be transmitted through interchange of infested towels and clothing or through contaminated toilets and sinks while one is in the bathroom."

"In order to prevent reinfection, the person's environment must also be treated, particularly clothing and bedding. If they are infested, we recommend removing them," said Rossi.

So at Bridgewater. Of March, the weather is quite often homophobic heterosexuals but were crisp and other gay men and women that was called GALA. I was surprised to learn that the people in the Student Senate had not only been threatened by students, but by a group of people who called themselves the "straight and proud." I was disappointed that no gala did not make it. I had expected to see a lot of other gay men and women that could join. I was disappointed that no gala did not make it. I had expected to see a lot of other gay men and women that could join. Is 25 mins. really necessary? I was wondering if any of you felt it necessary to remain in your 25 minus 30 minutes in your morning schedule to get from the town of Bridgewater to your office? Can you imagine having to wake up at 5:00 a.m. to get to Bridgewater on time? The first place we could, now we can't. And then what does one do with the long underwear when one arrives at the 85 minute near darkness, 6 without commuters, 4, Provide electricity, and move it closer, say, only 10 to 15 minutes away. So if you expeditiously wake up at 5:00 a.m. to get to Bridgewater on time, you may end the day with only a 10 minute near dark crowd. Great savings.

Why do you have to jobs that you don't have? Because there are people that pay to an education at Boston. Without students, you don't have classes. What percent of these are students who are not students? I'm not sure why we are in trouble. Even more importantly, students care enough about their school not only to participate but to constructively criticize its policies and organizations. Problems regarding the way the Student Government Association, which was run on the past three years. Fair and clean elections have been held, and the result has been a devoted SGA. Other troubled organizations, particularly the school's media groups, have come alive again and are attempting to deal with things that are important to the student body fairly. If you have always wanted to get involved with the school, now is your chance to get involved with the school.

Commentary: From the Women's Center

The recent Town College Committee meeting, Alumni Director Phil Frome, in the town of Bridgewater. BSC, then, is also a part of a larger community.

As for the student body, school pride is beginning to reach new levels. Although apathy may be a problem at other schools, has had quite powerful groups. We must walk, often in near darkness, 6 without commuters, 4,

The fall season is in full swing and so is football. A football and one way of betting when one does not know or have enough experience, is to bet on football cards. Football cards have a list of players and teams and indicate which team is the favorite and which is the underdog. The third column gives the points given the underdog. The points given one team by the other.

The little miracles of Handi-Kids

By Kevin Dwyer

As we entered the complex, I was amazed by the beauty of it. On the long, sweeping driveway down to the stables and pool house, we approached the building, a multi-purpose ranch, with a mixture of brick and siding under a green roof. The horses next to the stables, groups of goats and sheep, and ponies, were all quiet, lying down or standing, seemingly unused to the idea of being seen. We walked past a still and scenic pond on the right. The house sits on the corner of a quarter-mile track which surrounds a large, exposed brick under the sturdy wooden barn. We pulled up to the Handi-Kids stables. Sweet-Pea, one of the four horses there, was quiet, calm, and easy to handle. The bunk area and dry stalls were clean and tidy, with hay on the ground. It was a place very different from any other I have seen.

There's a place right here in Bridgewater where little miracles happen every day. Only special people go there. Drive down Rte. 34, pass the open fields of industrial or utilitarian uses, then take a left on Pinckney Rd. That's where you'll find this very, very special place. It's called Handi-Kids.

Handi-Kids is a non-profit organization providing recreational facilities and interactions with mentally and physically disabled children, teens, and adults from all parts of the Commonwealth. It offers services ranging from bowling (at Academy Bowling Alley) to health, arts, crafts to adult recreation—any activity you can imagine with special needs clients! I began to wonder why I agreed to take this assignment.

We entered the complex. I was a bit apprehensive. I didn't know much about the organization or its special clientele. The young man I had in mind as my contact for the coming evening was my main focus of interest. I was curious about the thought and energy of interacting with disabled persons. I was wondering if I would be able to take the assignment in the first place.

As my interaction with the client approached, I became more excited. The Handi-Kids building was a place I had never seen. I was looking forward to meeting the clients and understanding their needs.

Circulation staff provides many services

For most students, the Circulation Department is usually the place you first visit. It is symbolized by the long circulation desk inside the building, the card catalog, and the books in the stacks. Our library is no exception. It is a place where books are charged out and returned. But the physical aspect of the department encompasses much more than a place where books are stored. The department staff works hard to ensure that students have easy access to the materials they need. They are responsible for maintaining the collection and for providing excellent customer service.

The library's collection includes over 150,000 volumes, which are housed in two separate locations on campus. This vast collection includes a wide range of materials, from fiction and non-fiction books to journals and periodicals.

The circulation staff is dedicated to helping students find the resources they need. They are knowledgeable about the various sections of the collection and can provide guidance on how to locate specific materials. They are also responsible for ensuring that the library’s resources are used efficiently and effectively.

The staff is also responsible for maintaining the library’s collection. This includes acquiring new materials, replacing lost or damaged items, and ensuring that the collection is up-to-date and relevant. They are also responsible for ensuring that students are aware of the resources available to them.

The library’s collection includes a wide range of materials, from fiction and non-fiction books to journals and periodicals. The library also offers a variety of online resources, including databases and e-journals.

The library’s collection is continually updated to ensure that students have access to the most current and relevant materials. The staff is committed to providing students with the resources they need to succeed in their studies.

Our librarians are always available to help students find the resources they need. They are knowledgeable about the various sections of the collection and can provide guidance on how to locate specific materials. The little miracles of Handi-Kids

As we entered the complex, I was entranced by the beauty of it. On the left, a long, empty row of rooms, each lined with wooden doors and with a small window. On the right, a large, open area with a basketball court and a playground. The center of the complex was a statue of a young child, reading a book. And, as we walked, I realized why we were there.

Handi-Kids is a non-profit organization providing recreational facilities and companionship to mentally and physically disabled children, teens, and adults. It is one of the few centers specifically designed for children with special needs.

The visitors' guide abounds on the employment scene—and the challenges they face. But, there is also hope. Many a dark corner of fear, anger, and frustration is being filled to the brim, and crowns with opportunity for expansion.

Amanda, one of the staff members, said, "We see honest, hardworking people getting what they want. But, there are still many who are not being recognized."

The coming week offers little for the handicapped. The only thing that may help is a public relations campaign. But, don't expect to be able to do it. Close associates hold the key to success. Even so, you don't have to be the best; don't take everything so seriously.

The ride to campus was filled with good news. I wouldn't be here if I didn't feel good about the work being done there, the furtherance of your career. Words in Process, Inc. is a Randi-Kids volunteer, and feel that the work is important. The week is for financial decisions. The mood is pleasant and cooperative. The week scenes change: school, work, family matters to take a back seat to the work. The work that goes on at Handi-Kids is invaluable to the participants of their programs. It takes our actions to help one of these special people learn to overcome their disabilities. That's all. The five children at Randi-Kids are handicapped, not disabled. They are...

Dear P.J.,

I have a problem. All semester long I've been working off studying for hours each night. I've been getting good grades, but lately I haven't been able to concentrate like I used to, I have a feeling I'm "burned out." Do you know of anyway I can regain some energy to maintain my good grades?

With great appreciation,

Lushless

Dear P.J.,

Thank you for giving me a chance to talk about my problem. In the first place, you are right. I have been working too hard and not taking any time off to relax. I think I need a short break to get my mind off school! Go somewhere far away with your friends or do something you enjoy. When you return you'll be refreshed. Trust me and have a great time!

P.J.

Dear P.J.,

Yesterday was my birthday, I turned 21. My friends wanted to take me out to a club to celebrate, now that I'm legal. But try to look at the birthday party, I don't drink much, but my friends do. I ended up going out some of the first, but I didn't like being there. I don't like being around people the way that they are. And when you return you'll be refreshed. Trust me and have a good time!

P.J.

Dear P.J.,

Lately I have noticed that a lot of people on this campus show the "glow, glowing look"? Why is this? No one ever smiles anymore, is no one is cheery, no one looks happy. Things can't be that bad!

P.J.

Dear P.J.,

I agree with you. Everyone does... to have someone who they can talk to. But I don't like being there. I don't like being around people the way that they are. And when you return you'll be refreshed. Trust me and have a great time!

Baryshnikov shines in film debut

By: Lou Hansen

With several other successful film undertakings under his belt, Mikhail Baryshnikov has announced his upcoming role in the film "The White Nights," which is to be released this fall. Although Baryshnikov started his career in the ballet, he has a history of involvement in other forms of entertainment.

Norton letters resign

By: Michelle Lamberto

Michael Norton, known to many in the theater department and Student Union, has resigned his position as Technical Supervisor of the Student Union Auditorium. Norton has left Bridgewater for a career advancement in the Wang Center Box Office.

The university has the privilege of the back stage area in the Union, which is built and owned by the university. In addition, he supervised the lighting, the costumes, and bands that add background to the performances.

As for who will replace him at this time that information is unknown. As long as positions like this one are available, the students of the Technical Supervisors will go through the appropriate process and be selected for the position. For now, though, the positions will remain vacant.
Baryshnikov shines in film debut

By Lisa Hanson

With several other successful films under his belt, Taylor Hackford has announced that his last film, White Nights, starring Mikhail Baryshnikov and Gregory Hines. The dance of both light the lack of racial tolerence and centrality of a plot in White Nights. As a whole, the film White Nights is definitive proof of Hackford's ability to put the right actors in the right roles. Like Hackford's other films Odds and Ends, and Baryshnikov and Hines, he incorporates his interpretation in music to accommodate the story with such songs as "Say You Say Me" performed by Lionel Richie. White Nights, a Russian made film, starring the likes of Phil Collins and Marilyn Martin, along with many other songs that appear on the soundtrack.

White Nights was choreographed by Twyla Tharp. In many of the scenes, the dancer combines with extreme elegance the two dancing. There are several dance routines in the film which gracefully combined both tap and ballet with the elegance both types of dance deserve.

Isabella Rossellini and Mikhail Baryshnikov make a dancing escape from behind the Iron Curtain in White Nights. The film's story has been praised for its music and dance routines. An Officer and a Gentleman, starring Mikhail Baryshnikov and Gregory Hines, brought the talents of both to the screen in a compelling story about love and ambition.

Baryshnikov, a former Russian ballet star who defected to the US, plays the role of Kolya, a former Russian ballet dancer. Kolya, now an American citizen, finds himself in the middle of a dangerous situation. As Kolya crashes on a Soviet air base in Siberia, he is taken prisoner by the KGB, who believe he is a former Russian ballet star (Isabella Rossellini) a former Russian ballet dancer. Kolya is detained by a ranking KGB official, Colonel Chaiko (Jerzy Skolimowski), Kolya is detained and shares Kolya's former apartment in Moscow with a CIA agent, Raymond Greenwood (Gregory Hines), a black Vietnam veteran who will endanger all of their lives and Galina (Isabella Rossellini), a French exchange student. She becomes a propaganda tool as a symbol of the KGB's power. The CIA agents devise a daring escape plan that must be executed perfectly. The plot is filled with tension and excitement, making it more interesting than other films that have5 been released this year.

The film's music is another highlight, with songs like "With the Light of the Moon" and "In the Still of the Night," performed by Phil Collins and Marilyn Martin, respectively. The music adds to the film's emotional depth and enhances the story.

Overall, White Nights is a film that should not be missed. It is a story of love, ambition, and the power of dance. The performances of Baryshnikov and Hines are outstanding, and the film is a testament to the power of dance in storytelling.

Better off Dead gets buried

By Mark Avery

"Be better off, better off dead," is the theme of the movie Better Off Dead, a comedy that has been well-received by critics. The film is about a teenage boy named Mark, who is tired of his family's constant bickering. He decides to move out of the house and into a motel. However, his plans are interrupted when his family discovers that he has moved out.

The film is directed by John Hughes and stars John Cusack, Andie MacDowell, and John Lithgow. It was released in 1985 and has since become a cult classic.

The story follows Mark, a high school student who is fed up with his family's constant arguing. He makes up a plan to move out of the house and into a motel. However, when his family finds out, they try to stop him.

The film is about the challenges of growing up and the importance of family. It is a story of love and redemption, as Mark learns to appreciate his family and his own life.

Better Off Dead has been praised for its humor, its relatable characters, and its message about the importance of family. It is a film that is sure to make audiences laugh and think at the same time.

Better Off Dead revived

By E. Kelly

This film, in many ways, typifies high school life. It's filled with all the usual teenage problems: love, sex, and residue. Lenny, a young high school student, is obsessed with Diana, the girl next door. Unfortunately, she is more interested in the local football team, the Sportsmen. Lenny realizes that his best chance of winning Diana's heart is to beat the Sportsmen, but he doesn't have a team. He decides to form one, and with some help from his friends, he does.

A trio of music reviews

By David Sparta

O'Town Wicked Good

Perfume Sņes is hopping. The guitars thrum, the drums tap, and the music drops. It's completed. But Charles D'Amato, the producer, tells him, "It's not complete, crazy, and his father thinks he's done with music." Lenny, however, is determined. He plans to release the album and prove everyone wrong.

Bears win in splesadence, 7-0

By Mark Avery

Kiss of the Spider Woman

The movie opens with Molina describing his life in prison. Molina is a gay man (played brilliantly by William Hurt). He is an intelligent man, a writer, and a political prisoner. The movie is a very intense emotional film about two prisoners who become friends. It defies description. The only term I can give away what it is like.

The film is about friendship, love and commitment. It is a very moving and heart-wrenching story. The acting is superb, especially by the main actors. The film is a very rare gem, a true masterpiece of cinema.
