The issue of affordable child care is a crucial one being raised across the nation. In the 35 states with a state Early Childhood Learning Center (ECLC), 39% of all early education is done on a voluntary basis, which means that families have to foot the bill to bring their kids to class. That's a lot of money, and many families struggle to afford it.

ECLCs provide early childhood education programs that are designed to help children develop their cognitive, social, and emotional skills. In order to be eligible for an ECLC, families must meet certain income requirements. However, many families who meet these requirements still cannot afford the high costs of child care.

Despite these challenges, ECLCs have shown to be effective in improving children's outcomes. Studies have found that children who attend ECLCs are more likely to attend high-quality schools, graduate from high school, and earn higher wages as adults.

The question now is how to ensure that all families have access to high-quality child care. One solution is to increase state funding for ECLCs. Another option is to create sliding scale fees based on income. These measures would help more families afford the high costs of child care and give children a better start in life.

Take the T to Bridgewater?

By Mary MacNeil

Public commuters of Bridgewater State College have made their voices heard, with the commute on the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority's schedule. As you will see, their moves are to be completed by mid-1990.

On November 15, MBTA officials are planning an informational meeting to inform its commuters of the public of their plans and to receive feedback from students and colleagues of attendance. In attendance will be Secretary John Myers, Carolyn Mowry, and David Canepa. Also present were Police Chief William Ficci, approximately 50 townspersons, and Dave Wilson, Director of the Public Affairs Office of the MBTA.

Studies are still being conducted to determine the feasibility of the project, the environmental impact of the altered services and alternative and possible station locations. Special attention is being paid to a proposal submitted by President Pilgrim, in which college property would be used as a station location. According to Executive Vice-President Madison, "The campus site will be the most logical and attractive."

At the present time, MBTA officials and officials are visiting the more than 20 other institutions that challenged the MBTA over this issue. According to Professor Stephen Latimer, "This proposal is not a political maneuver, it is a matter of public good and public need. It is not something that we should be worried about, because it is something that is right for the MBTA's future.""1

Financial Aid paid out

As you will find in the weekly phone book, not to be posted outside both the Financial Aid and Affairs Office on the payment date. This list will show only the social security number of those students who will be paid November 30 and December 14. It is not intended in any way for the students to be realized over this financial aid award letter, they should consult with the financial aid office, Tillington Hall, concerning the amount of their aid package.1

The Comment Poll:

It's time now for the real fall series. As you will see, the level of activity has increased. In the last few weeks, we have received over a hundred responses, and we are excited to see how it continues to grow.

Dear Editor:
The classification of the abortion question as an issue of free choice is a misconception of our basic values in American society. Abortion is not a choice but a necessary human right. Indeed, however there is a more fundamental right than abortion—freedom of choice. Freedom of choice may be ignored by supporters of a no- choice position. Freedom of choice to live or to die is the most basic of values because it guarantees that the person is free to act and to make decisions as he chooses. Freedom of choice is the fundamental and the most essential of all human rights.

The proponents of abortion, who claim to be concerned about the sanctity of life, are deceiving the nation. Communism, a religious and ideological system, is a false religion. It has been practiced in several parts of the world. It experiences are terrible, and its users have been and are still being killed in millions. The moral issue of whether a person has the right to live or die is a fundamental issue for us today. If we lose freedom of choice, if we lose freedom to act, our existence will be meaningless. Is freedom of choice any less important than freedom of speech and freedom of religion? It is just as fundamental to us. If freedom of choice is taken away, the lives of individuals become meaningless, and society itself becomes meaningless.

It is not a question of whether we should have the right to life. The right to life is a given. The only question is whether we should have the right to choose whether to exercise that right.

Sincerely,

Early Childhood Learning Center staff thinking positively

Dear Editor:

I'm writing to express my concerns about the impact of school shootings on students, particularly at my school, Early Childhood Learning Center. Despite the best efforts of the staff, the recent events have had a profound effect on the children in our care.

After the incident, the Early Childhood Learning Center staff immediately took steps to ensure the safety and well-being of our students. We implemented additional security measures, including increased surveillance and more frequent security checks. We also provided counseling services to those who needed them.

The children were visibly upset, and it was clear that they were struggling to understand what had happened. We worked hard to help them process their emotions and to provide them with a sense of security and stability.

As a concerned parent, I believe it is important for us to be proactive in addressing these issues. We should consider implementing more comprehensive mental health support for our students and staff. Additionally, we should continue to monitor the situation closely and be prepared to take further action as needed.

Sincerely,

Between the Lines

-Brent F. Rossi-

An interesting thing happened to me last week. Well, at least I wasn't that interested. Actually, if you want to know, I wasn't that interested.

Now, after a few years in the Early Childhood Learning Center, I've become quite interested in the topic of education. I've seen firsthand the importance of early childhood education, and I believe it is crucial for the success of our children.

So, while I was walking down the hallway between the dorm and the tennis courts, I thought about the impact of education on our society. I considered the role of education in developing a strong economy and in fostering innovation.

As I walked, I couldn't help but wonder about the future of our society. Our children are the future, and it's up to us to ensure that they are prepared to face the challenges they will encounter.

I believe that education is the key to unlocking our children's potential. We must provide them with the resources and support they need to succeed.

Sincerely,

The Truth About Cancer

By Kevin Eaton

"Nine percent of all college graduates will have to give up a job or go to a doctor," said Prof. Makkiey of the public health and communications department. "Public health awareness is the key. The fact that you are reading this article is a good sign you care about your health."

Alas, those days are gone. The number of people suffering from cancer continues to rise, and the cost of health care is becoming prohibitive. As the price of health care rises, the cost of living for the average American family increases.

The cost of health care has been rising so rapidly that many Americans are forced to go without necessary medical treatment. This is unacceptable, and we must work to bring the costs of health care down.

Sincerely,

Getting Rid of the Butterflies

By Kirk VanDyke

"I want you to know that I am not a fan of butterflies," said Dr. Lisa Johnson of the psychology department. "But I will say that they can be quite distracting, especially when they are flying around your head."}

The audience will notice these butterflies when you are speaking. They are a result of your nervousness, and they will disappear as soon as you start talking. The more you practice, the better you will become at speaking in public.

In the long run, it is better to practice your speech than to go out on Halloween night and see what happens. If you are off to a good start, try to keep going. If you are having problems, think about what you can do to improve. If you are having fun, think about what you can do to make your speech more interesting. If you are having problems with your speech, think about what you can do to improve. If you are having fun, think about what you can do to make your speech more interesting.

A Change in Bowler or Bowl, the Butterfly problem

"Bowling and Butterflies are two things that I love," said Dr. Johnson. "But I have noticed that when I am bowling, I tend to get butterflies in my stomach."

Some people think that butterflies are a sign of nervousness, while others believe that they are a sign of excitement. In either case, it is important to recognize that butterflies are a normal part of the human experience.

The answer is yes to the question: "Is the right to life ignored?"

No doubt it seems that everything has its price, and there are so many stories and findings that it is hard to know which to believe and which to ignore. It seems that every article is taken from a brochure or book, and the information is accompanied by many facts, many figures, many graphs, hundreds of statistics, the stories in which our society is living, in fact, much, much more.

In a recent conference on the subject of abortion, a speaker said, "If you want to know the truth about abortion, you have to look at the facts." But the facts are not always easy to find. It is not easy to find a clear answer to the question of whether abortion is right or wrong.

Sincerely,

Is the right to live ignored?

Dear Editor:
The classification of the abortion question as an issue of free speech is based on the basic values in American society, but it must be kept in mind that the Constitution, if it were adhered to, would be a legal document ignored by the people of a new country who live in a state of lawlessness.

Early Childhood Learning Center staff thinking positively

Dear Editor:

Brooklyn Children’s Learning Center has been a part of the college since 1997. The staff at the center is committed to the development of young children in the early childhood years. The center provides a stimulating and safe environment for children to learn and grow.

Energy and confidence are required by early childhood teachers working with children who have physical and language delays.

The Truth About Cancer

By Prof. Miskelly

This article is taken from a brochure put together by the American College of Surgeons, Institute for Cancer Research, and the National Cancer Institute. It is a helpful compendium of cancer facts and will help clear up some of the myths about cancer.

WHAT CAUSES CANCER?

There are two ways you can evaluate a change, but neither is foolproof. The first is to think back over the past day or so. Have you eaten a new food or drink that you've never had before? Do you have any other symptoms that could be related to cancer?

The second way is to wait and see. Most functional bowel and bladder problems go away within a short time when the cause is removed. When normalcy returns, when you return home after travelling, when final exams are over, when you get the promotions you want. However, if the problem persists more than a few days you should see a doctor.

CANCER

The Comment continues from p. 5.

You will know when the process is under way because:

1. You have a nagging cough—A persistent cough is considered one of the most telltale signs of cancer.
2. Indigestion
   a. Difficulty swallowing also has causes, but this symptom is less common than indigestion and is therefore a warning sign.
   b. Indigestion is also a common symptom of stomach ulcers, which can be easily removed, and if the ulcer is not malignant (often referred to as benign), then it is accessible to the surgeon.

Surgical removal is certainly worth considering for malignant tumors, polyps, and other growths. But surgery is not always an option. In addition, the presence of metastasis, that diet and tobacco are the main causes, is an important factor. As the tumor has metastasized, the disease may be worse, and the surgical removal may be more risky.

Tour Exciting Sicily and Southern Italy

A special art study tour of Sicily and southern Italy, presented by the Bridgewater State College departments of Art and Foreign Languages through the Program of Graduate and Continuing Education, will be offered to American residents.

The tour includes visits to some of the most exciting archeological sites and sanctuaries in southern Italy. The tour includes pre-planned stops at a broad introduction to Italian art and archeology, with particular emphasis on Greek and Roman sites in southern Italy and Sicily.

Most days will have full programs of walking tours and museum visits. The group will be traveling among Palermo, Scicli, Taormina, Syracuse, and, of course, Rome.

The group will be accompanied by Prof. John M. Mahaffy, Bridgewater State College Art History Department, and Dr. Leon Pedale, Bridgewater State College's department of foreign languages. Both Prof. Mahaffy and Dr. Pedale have had extensive study tours to Italy.

The program will offer an opportunity for the group to see the magnificent Fiera dei Siculi, which proved to be a mass production of the 16th century. I can see the headline, clear as day. It will be one of those checkout counter tabloids, or any of Rupert Murdoch's publications, next to the other rags and tabloids. It will read: "Tom Shoe Bill Buckner is to John McNamara's Son."

No, that will be no, there's no story. No one can know the future. Bill Buckner should not have been playing in this World Series. And it hurts the Red Sox Red Sox dramatically that he was. Throughout most of the year, he played reasonably well, certainly not well. His fielding was wretched, as he had been (14 errors, 10 average at all). For the time being, the Red Sox are going to stay at Bridgewater College.

Early Childhood Learning Center focused on Tilly

By Pamela M. Bucen

The issue of safe, affordable child care is one that crosses the nation. In this area of the country, the Bridgewater Early Childhood Learning Center, Inc., a non-profit organization involved in the training of early childhood professionals, is making a difference.

The center has been open for over a year now and is now in its third year. The center has six openings for children, three in each of the three age groups served: 2-3, 3-5, and 6-12.

The center is located at 255 South Main Street, Framingham, Massachusetts.
