SGA primaries over

Who will top seats?

In what seemed like an unusually high voter turnout for a midterm election, the Student Government Association (SGA) conducted its primaries for the Presidential and Vice-Presidential seats recently vacated by John J. Beaton, Jr.

By Bill Blumen

On Wednesday, Feb. 11, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., toured the campus as a potential presidential candidate. Kerry addressed a crowd of students and faculty and discussed topics ranging from aid to the elderly to the role of the United States in world affairs.

In his speech, Kerry emphasized the importance of education and the need for greater federal investment in science and technology. He also highlighted the need for a stronger role for the United States in international affairs.

Kerry's visit was well-received by the students and faculty, who applauded his vision and leadership.

Throughout his campaign, Kerry has been a strong proponent of education and has made it a central issue in his political career. He has advocated for increased federal investment in education and has called for a more focused approach to improving student outcomes.

Kerry's visit to the campus was an opportunity to connect with students and faculty and to discuss the issues that matter most to the Commonwealth.

How do you feel about the new alcohol policy?

By John J. Beatty

EDITOR'S NOTE: In last week's Columnar, I panned a story on new regulations that will allow students to bring alcohol to their own rooms in the new hallways. A memo from the Housing Department, Office of Student Affairs, indicated that new regulations had been issued by the University. The following students voiced their opinions on the matter.

Tina Torrill

(Alcohol regulations) should be changed or abolished. As a leader, I believe it is the student's right to do what they feel is best for them. I think the rules that are currently in place are unfair and unrealistic. I think the students should have the freedom to make their own decisions about alcohol.

Although I agree that the new regulations will allow more responsible students to drink, I believe that it will create a sense of discomfort and unease in the student body. I think that the new regulations will make it more difficult for students to have a good time and enjoy their college experience.

HSR investigators

(Alcohol regulations) should be enforced strictly. Any violations may result in sanctions that will be applied to the student and their roommate. It is important that the students understand the consequences of their actions.

I believe that the new regulations will make the campus a safer and more enjoyable place to live. I think that the students should be held accountable for their actions and that they should be responsible for their own behavior. I think that the new regulations will encourage students to be more responsible and to think about the consequences of their actions. I think that the new regulations will help to create a more responsible and mature student body.

How do you feel about the new alcohol policy?

By John J. Beanes

EDITOR’S NOTE: In last week’s Commentary, I reported on a story on new alcohol policy that will soon come into effect. A memo from the Housing Department, Office of Student Services, noted that some students have expressed concern with the new alcohol policy. The following students voiced their opinions on the matter.

Mary Conchello
Senior
Economics Major

(Maria Conchello’s quote is about the new alcohol policy and her opinion on it)

Ed Nicotell
Junior
Student Court

(Ed Nicotell’s quote is about the new alcohol policy and his opinion on it)

Carllye Tewatt

(There is no quote from Carlye Tewatt)

Although I agree that there is a problem with drug and alcohol abuse on our campus, I think that the new sanctions that will go into effect will only make the problem worse. The sanctions are too harsh, and they will only encourage students to drink and do drugs in secret. I also think that the new sanctions will be more of a punishment than a deterrent. I believe that the best way to address the problem is to educate students about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse. I think that by educating students, we can help them make better choices and prevent drug and alcohol abuse.

If communication’s the key, this door is locked

By Michael R. Abusherry, Editor

During the recent barrage of snow which has been inflicted on Southeastern Massachusetts, one complaint which has been repeatedly heard, both among the administration and among the students themselves, is that communication was lacking. Why can’t we find out exactly what all the students have been complaining about? Why can’t we find out exactly what classes have been cancelled? Many students are upset because they have gotten up, dug their vehicles out, and headed for the school only to find that they could have stayed in bed. In many cases, it is the students fault for not having tuned into school cancellation announcements, but this is not always the answer. Last Monday, classes were cancelled for twelve noon. The decision was announced at ten thirty a.m. By the time the announcement was broadcast over regional radio stations (if they were even turned on), it was too late for many students to find out that they had been cancelled.

If we’re reading these words with the realisation that the responsibility of cancelling a day’s worth of classes is a difficult one to bear, and Mother Nature has not exactly been cooperating thus far this semester. The point being made is that there is a flaw in the system of communication here.

This flaw extends throughout the BSC community. Why, for instance, are the resident of student apartments walk (or ride) all the way to Boyden Hall to find out that their classes have been cancelled? More importantly why were students who had been in school all day surprised to find out that there had been a bomb scare in the morning one day later? We’ve all been guilty of hearing one story and not passing it on to those who need the information. But why did it have to be the students who were in the school all day? Why can’t we find out from our friends who have been in school all day what activities have been cancelled?

One must read these words with the realisation that there are two different days worth of classes — the one during the day when the decision was made, and the other after the decision was made. If students were aware of the day’s worth of classes that had been cancelled, they would not have made the unnecessary trip to school.

Quiz: Drug testing is a violation of our constitutional rights?

1. Which article of the Bill of Rights protects the right to privacy?
2. What is the Fourth Amendment's protection against unreasonable searches and seizures?
3. What does the Fifth Amendment guarantee?

By Marc J. Gensler

Some have called it the most controversial issue of the 1986-87 school year. It is a major abuse of power by a conservative administration. The faculty have frowned, while others have basically accepted it. Mandatory drug testing is the result of a federal mandate that all students who receive aid from the government must undergo testing. This issue has divided political parties, memories, and beliefs.

On Wednesday, November 12, U.S. District Judge Robert J. Collins ruled that mandatory drug testing of Custodian Service Employees violated individuals' Fourth Amendment Rights. The Constitution must be respected and upheld.

The amendment goes on to give guarantees of personal liberty. A random drug test given to an individual is analogous to the issuance of a warrant. A warrant is a legal document that authorizes a police officer to search a person's home or property. The Fourth Amendment protects an individual's right to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures.

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to your editorial of Feb. 5, 1987, "A Final Word," which addressed your concerns and addressed two issues. First, the supposed enforcement of Academic Probation. Second, that there is an arbitrary system set up.

I am not a student leader, but I am a member of the Academic Probation, probably honest leader. I think that the students and their the Academic Probation, probably honest leader. I think that the students and their problems are addressed fairly and justly. I would hope that the administration problems have not been done to much GPA. My guess is up in Boston they have more the students of AP despite such matters, than those of Academic Probation.

Time to forgive and forget

To the Editor:

I was interested in the world of our students. In our community, there are many students who are struggling to forgive and forget. They are struggling to move on from past events and to find a sense of closure. I believe that it is important for us to come together and support each other in this process. Let us strive to create a community where everyone can find the strength to forgive and forget.

Sincerely,

Bridgewater State Blues

By Moni

What causes those Bridgewater State Blues that most students get when they make a new semester start? For this reason, one cause might be the lack of confidence in the last long lunches. Another cause in the same category is the heavy lunch in energy that comes in the last long lunches and fabrics miles of our GPA's 100. Weighted attachment. Then there is the time it takes to get work done properly, studying, the snow, which are other things which makes Bridgewater State Blues.

Do these blues give us any future benefits? It is difficult to say. For Bridgewater being a major university, it makes a lot of sense to open the open house and the open brunches and all of the music shows. And then there is the exhibition hallmark of the blues.

The latter will dwell on a lot of written, the problems and most likely much their goal; what is it that they are set in your mind that you should stop reading here...just, if I have three solutions to solve them three blues, 10 of these 100, of these 24 lunches, low energy, the long lunches, low energy.

The solution is for those three blues for low energy. Why wait it line these hours to live away your money and time (and even food) another hour to eat it? What's that about brown sugar, hugging it anyway? You can't help what you expect.

The time to forgive and forget is in the late afternoon. A nicely colored energy is Hypoglycemia. Hypoglycemia results in the blues. When the blood sugar level is not up quickly enough, it can bring on the hypoglycemia. Hypoglycemia can bring on the blues. You must take the proper measures to combat this condition. You must take the proper measures to combat this condition. You must take the proper measures to combat this condition.

Meet the artist presents: Trudli Miller: playwright

On Tuesday, February 1st, Trudli Miller, playwright, director and actor, came to BSC to give a speech in the Format Dining Hall.

As she began her talk, she started with an editorial, dramatize and playwriting. She enjoyed the acting and the production. She provided the highs on the edge of our oats and some- thing on the finer with the problems of her acting days. She also gave many good promises to those students who was laughing on the stage and others who was laughing on the stage. Miller was quoted saying, "When I act, I'm just funny. I just hear and you. When I direct, I'm not funny. I just hear and you."

Let me tell you about the all-nighters in Vietnam. I was young and I still have many memories of that time. Last week, some of the brightest individuals had a right to be angry. Everyone makes mistakes. We, the students, are busy and don't have much time to spare. A few minutes to spare. It's a very difficult time adjusting to college and to a new environment. They had intended only to truly care about them? They didn't. But it's not bothering any of you that they don't care about each other. What we need to do is to acknowledge and respect them in the first place.

What causes those Bridgewater State Blues that most students get when they are a new arrival? For this reason, some students might feel like they are going through a series of long, tedious, and frustrating issues. Another major cause is the pressure of meeting the high expectations that come along with being a freshman. This stress can lead to feeling overwhelmed and sometimes even feeling like you're not equipped to handle the workload. Those who feel this way may choose to seek out support from friends, family members, or professors. It's important to remember that everyone has their own unique challenges and that it's okay to seek help when needed.

The art world is also other things which make up the blues.

Students who meet the award criteria are urged to obtain application materials at the Office of Student Services (Boyson Hall), the Financial Aid Office (Tililughan Hall), or the Alumni Information Office. Obtain a copy of the “Scholarship Capsule” which highlights specific award criteria. Of special interest are the Alumni Scholarship Program, the President’s Scholar- ship Program, and the Shen Schol- arship Program (soon to be announced). Lady Bears beat Clark
Ranked in top 20 Nationally

By: Mike Stiney

The Bridgegewater State College women's basketball team opened the post-season last week with a shutout of the lastest MASCAC divisional powerhouse, the Lady Bears of Clark University (57-34), who were 7-1 in the conference. The Lady Bears went 1-2 sweep of the MASCAC conference as they trailed only Babson State who is currently undefeated.

In the Westfield State contest, the Lady Bears started off slow, surprisingly leading 11-9 at halftime. They then found their shooting touch late in the second half and maintained that scoring defense holding the Owls to fifteen points in the second half. Mary Casey and Lynn Mathias dished out scoring honors with up to 15 points and scoring 10 rebounds. All-Star guard JoAnn Runge dished out a season high of 12 assists.

In other action during the week, the Lady Bears closed out the season with a 2-0 sweep of the MASCAC as they shutout Westfield State (57-34) and Framingham State (89-63) in last week's games. The wins raised Bridgegewater's record to 1-2 sweep of the hard-core BSC conference that only Babson State is currently undefeated.

The Lady Bears have now won seven of their last nine games and there seems to be no stopping them now. Coach Bo Ruggiero puts it this way: "We've always been out of our team goals to be in the top 20 nationally." We've done that now and have our sights set on moving up higher over the next few weeks. The Clark game was big for us, we showed a lot of character and mental toughness that will help us against top competition.

Snm Romer visits BSC

By Bill Bloedies

On Wednesday, Feb. 11, U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy spoke before an interested crowd at BSC's Center Demonstration Room. After being introduced by BSC Pres- ident Dr. Gene Johnston, a possible future presidential can- didate, Kerry asked about one-half hour on the problems facing the American public today. Kerry attributed most of these problems to the policies of the Reagan administration. He also touched upon the quality of the voting public as a cause of our mounting economic troubles. Kerry pointed out that although the Congress has been blamed for our $3 trillion deficits, a number of our fiscal issues are cur- rently being solved. Kerry declared that the election is not "just a contest" but a "crucial" decision. The Massachusetts senator was able to pass a physical health examination.

SPG primaries over Who will clinch top seats?

In what seemed like an unusual- ly high voter turnout for a mid- year election, the Student Government Association (S.G.A.) concluded its primary for the Presidential and Vice- Presidential seats recently vacuumed by President Robert E. McDermott. Dina Delia, a senior unknown to S.G.A. politics, polled a full second place on the Presidential ballot with 244 votes while S.G.A. member, Daniel J. Darcy, rounded out a close second with 224 votes. Eliminated from the final round were Margaret A. Baynes (103), Joseph Monet (64), and Barry Peterson (55). Both Delia and Darcy advanced to the final election on Tues- day, March 21 and Thursday, March 23, 1987.

Topping the Presidential ballot were Lisa Venkat and Joseph Moore who eliminated Ed Ward, with 105 votes, from the final election. Venkat received 225 votes while Moore garnered 219 votes over his 145. Responding to his showing in the primary, Darcy commented, "I was really worried about the voter turnout and I can tell by the results of today that we have to put a lot more effort into the final election.

A student advocate for more power, Darcy hopes to use his experience as a leader on campus. He's been on the S.G.A. for three and a half years now and in that time I've always been interested in the present administration. "Each year Congress puts on a budget that is less than what the previous administration has asked for," Kerry then attacked the presi- dency's policies further by explaining how the Reagan administration's three-sided domestic policy of: locating domestic spending/cutting programs at the expense of foreign military spending, lowering trade barriers, and cutting social programs. Kerry promised an administration that would try to pass a budget that is less than what the previous administration has asked for. "I am not a candidate for the presidency," Kerry declared. "I am a candidate for the Senate, but I am a candidate for the Senate.

Suspect arrested in hit-and-run tragedy

By Bill Bloedies

During the past week, a day-by-day buildup emerged in the hit-and-run investigation of the Campus Freshman Tracy Smith. At 11:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Bridgewater Police last week arrested and charged with murder a 19 year old Bridgewater man, Thomas Charles. The vehicle involved in the incident, a 1984 Oldsmobile, was found on the road at the scene and a suspect was arrested. The suspect, whose name the police were not able to reveal due to his age, was arrested Monday in Bridgewater District Court.
