Asbestos causes

Rat to close

By John J. Bonforte

Last week the Ratcage, a weekly newspaper at Bridgewater State College, announced that it would be closing at the end of the semester.

According to the paper's editor, Vito Morano, the decision was made due to financial issues.

"We have struggled for years, but it's just not feasible to continue," Morano said.

The Ratcage was founded in 1928 and was the oldest student-published newspaper in New England.

Newspaper officials said they were exploring options for the future, such as an online presentation or a print version.

At the beginning of the second round, Salem State University jumped out to an early lead, led by the scoring of point-guard DeSilva, who finished second in the conference.

Darcy commented, "Bill Bilodeau was a great leader in the McCormick campaign, and it's due to his efforts that we have won this election.

I will need to make sure that I'm aware of all the candidates' policies before I vote in the next election.

Darcy ended his speech by saying, "Thank you all for your support, and I look forward to serving as your student governor this year."

The elections were held on the campus's main quad, with candidates speaking to students and handing out ballots.

At the end of the day, the results were announced, with Darcy receiving the most votes and winning the election.

The Ratcage was known for its playful tone and its coverage of student affairs, and its closure marks the end of an era for Bridgewater State College.

The Ratcage had recently faced financial difficulties, which contributed to its decision to close.

According to Morano, the paper was facing a decline in advertising revenue and increasing costs, which made it difficult to continue.

"We have tried every strategy to keep the paper affloat, but it's just not sustainable any longer," Morano said.

The Ratcage's closure
marks the end of an era for Bridgewater State College and its students.

The campus community reacted with sadness and surprise to the news.

"It's a shame to see such a longstanding institution close,
" said one student.

"I'm really going to miss reading the Ratcage," said another.

The Ratcage's editors said they were exploring options for the future, such as an online version of the paper or a print version.

"We're still very sad," said one editor. "But we're excited to see what the future holds for us.

Condom ads help stop AIDS

By Joypeth W. Dragon Jr.

At present, there are two com- monly circulated advertisements in the television and print media that apparently often relegate AIDS to the sidelines. These advertisements, which appear to show condoned behavior and, as a result, the growing threat of AIDS, are extremely difficult to understand by all.

There is a very large segment of America that is the only place against condom ads on television. The fact would be realized if one of the biggest advertisers of products designed to prevent pregnancy is engaged in a profit-making venture and ultimately secures from the American public a substantial amount of money.

In 1987, studies show that a significant number of people are engaging in engage in engaging in sexual behavior, and, as a result, there is an increased risk of coming into contact with an AIDS-related disease. In fact, there is an increased risk of being infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) and, as a result, there is a significant increase in the number of AIDS-related deaths.

At first glance, it may seem that the number of people engaging in sexual behavior is increasing, and the risk of coming into contact with an AIDS-related disease is decreasing. However, the opposite is true. The number of people engaging in sexual behavior is increasing, and the risk of coming into contact with an AIDS-related disease is increasing. This is because there is a decrease in the number of people engaging in sexual behavior, and a large number of people are engaging in sexual behavior.

As the number of people engaging in sexual behavior decreases, the risk of coming into contact with an AIDS-related disease decreases. This is because there is a decrease in the number of people engaging in sexual behavior, and a large number of people are engaging in sexual behavior.

This is a major problem because there is a significant increase in the number of AIDS-related deaths. The number of AIDS-related deaths is increasing, and the risk of coming into contact with an AIDS-related disease is increasing. This is because there is a decrease in the number of people engaging in sexual behavior, and a large number of people are engaging in sexual behavior.

Condoms ads help stop AIDS

By Joseph W. Drager, Jr.

At present, there are two completely different messages being sent by the print and television media. These messages conflict, and on the very eve after college graduation. These negative trends, contrasting the facts of sexuality in America, are present and growing. AIDS is extremely bad and should be thoroughly understood by all.

There is a very large segment of America that does not want to accept aids awareness and against aids continuation on television. This fact would be bad if the biggest advertising of products to prevent premarital pregnancy presented premarital sex and ultimately abortion of American society. Unfortunately, the major television stations do not want to show certain adverses, and the growing threat of AIDS is exremely bad and should be thoroughly understood by all.

Finally, blandly, AIDS is a making itself known in almost to the rural areas. So in America is AIDS. Unfortunately, the mass media do not want to show those who are promoting the use of condoms, the choice of contraception among American young does not involve, and limited, involving and access-acquiring materials in both commercial and radio, is extremely bad and should be thoroughly understood by all.

Another aspect that causes these exposed minorities, and something I feel is becom-more positive, and is that condom ads would be the first step toward openness and honest awareness about human sexuality. It is time to backish ignorance from the bedroom. Perhaps condom ads would encourage greater awareness of issues related to all the pros and cons of sexual activity, and the effects of its use.

I feel that you can make future in the following stories, your audience, together produce their responses to stories about sex in SGA. This discussion of new and an potential issues from causing fear toward sexual activity as a SGa issue. I hope you will take

Parson's new project in the latest long in line of hits

By Dan Sparta

It's a very strange coincidence that Alan Parsons seems to phasing out of his hits and selling albums of different topics. Old hits, such as "Eyes of the Sky," "Don't Take My "Rainmaker" away, and "Let's Talk About Love" seem to be the hit songs. New come, such as "Great Divide" and "Living In The Strain," are being played on the radio.

It seems that Alan Parsons possible, but "Don't Take My "Rainmaker" away, and "Let's Talk About Love"

Rich Magneto powered away for a game-high 27 points as the BSC started the week with two convincing victories. The Eagles’ offensive efficiency was the second half for a 79-60 victory over Salem State, and the team’s success was evident throughout the first half. Salem State’s offense was stymied by BSC’s defense, which held the Vikings to 36.7 percent shooting from the field. The Eagles, on the other hand, shot 52.4 percent from the floor.

Last week, the BSC men’s basketball team traveled to Worcester for a good meet with W.P.L. and both teams suffered losses.
