President releases statements against tuition hikes

By Bryan Hayes

The Council of State College Presidents released unanimous statements expressing concern over proposed tuition hikes. The statements outlined the following points:

1. The proposed tuition increases are not sustainable and will hinder access to public higher education.
2. Public institutions should focus on maintaining access and affordability, especially for low-income students.
3. The increase would disproportionately affect low-income students and those from minority backgrounds.
4. The Council believes that these sections of the population should not have to bear the brunt of the tuition hikes.

The Council also feels that these proposals should be carefully reviewed and modified to ensure they are fair and equitable.

This release comes one week after the release of the President's tuition hike proposal.

The Council of State College Presidents, led by President Jane Neild, is a body that represents public higher education institutions in the state. The Council is committed to ensuring that access to higher education is maintained and that all students have the opportunity to succeed.

This release was approved by a vote of 10 to 0, with all members strongly supporting the statements.

This is the biggest (issue) we’ve had so far. It’s about time we started doing something.

By Bryon Hayes

The Presidential Search Committee is in the final stages of its efforts to find Bridgewater College's next president, and Committee member Vinny Fernald will not take small steps for the prospects in the group's search.

"We are looking forward to the new president," said Fernald. "We want to find the candidate best suited for the position."

Fernald, a communication major and a member of the Class of 1990, was selected for the Committee by the number of letters submitted by students, administration, faculty, and staff.

"The president of a university has a large responsibility, but the president also has a large role in shaping the institution," Fernald stated.

"I think it's important to have a president who will be able to make decisions that will benefit the institution as a whole."

According to Fernald, the president should be someone who is able to lead the institution through challenging times.

"The president should be someone who can inspire and motivate the students and faculty to work together to achieve the institution's goals."

Fernald stated that the president should also be someone who is able to communicate with all members of the institution, including students, faculty, and staff.

"The president should be someone who is able to listen to the concerns of all members of the institution and work to address them."

Fernald stated that the presidential search committee is looking for a candidate who is able to lead the institution through challenging times.

One more time!
MassPIRG explained, again

The Comment

One of the major roles of a public interest organization is to support political action in support of our environmental, consumer, and other goals. MassPIRG is student-based, and its success is measured in terms of what we can achieve by using our collective voice.

MassPIRG is no different from the other consumer action groups that have existed in the past. We are all part of a larger movement that has been working to protect the rights of consumers for over a century.

In this particular case, we have been working with the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MassPIRG) to help educate the Massachusetts General Assembly about the dangers of the proposed stopgap spending bill.

In the past, we have been successful in passing laws that protect the rights of consumers. We have been able to force companies to provide products that are safe and effective. We have been able to force governments to provide services that are free of corruption.

But this time, we have been frustrated. The Massachusetts General Assembly has been unwilling to listen to our arguments. They have been willing to pass laws that are harmful to consumers.

We are not giving up. We will continue to work until we have passed the stopgap spending bill.

Aerosmith is on a "Permanent Vacation"

Don McLean to perform at BSC

By Linda O'Brien

Most New England fans of Aerosmith are overly familiar with their tumultuous relationship that began the very city that saw the band perform. And yet this relationship continues to evolve.

"Aerosmith is on a Permanent Vacation," according to their lead singer, Paul "Perry" Butler. The Boston-based rock band has been on tour since 1975, and has been off and on since then, with various changes in lineup. Their latest release, "Done with It," was released in 1995 and features a new lineup.

Butler says that the band is currently on a "hiatus," and that they will return to the road in 2023. "It's time for us to take a break," he adds. "We've been together for too long, and we need to recharge our batteries."

The band has also announced plans to release a new album in 2022, and to embark on a world tour to promote it. "We're excited to get back on the road," Butler says. "It's the best way to connect with our fans and to keep our music alive."
Aerosmith is on a "Permanent Vacation"

By Linda Omolola

The campus center program committee was on hand at the Front Line Assembly to catch the band's performance. This was the last show of the semester for the band, and everyone was excited.

The show started with an energetic opening number, setting the tone for the rest of the night. The band members were in high spirits, and their energy was contagious. The crowd was dancing and cheering along, creating a festive atmosphere.

During the performance, the band played a mix of old classics and new hits, satisfying the diverse musical tastes of the audience. From rock to pop, they showcased their versatility and musicianship.

The highlight of the night was when the band members surprised the crowd by inviting a local fan on stage to sing with them. The fan was overjoyed and sang a duet with one of the lead vocalists, adding a special touch to the performance.

After the show, the band members took some time to sign autographs and take photos with fans, making the evening even more memorable.

Overall, the "Permanent Vacation" tour was a success, and the band's dedication to their fans was evident throughout the performance. The crowd was left satisfied, and the night ended on a high note. The band's commitment to their craft and their passion for music was plainly visible, and it was a delight to witness.

The article ends with a note of gratitude to the campus center program committee, the campus center, and the fans for making the evening unforgettable.
