Charles Kuralt 'on the road' in Bridgewater

By Paul Prezioso

Contra the cold fronts of Iowa to the mountains of Colorado, to the crowded auditorium at Bridgewater State College Auditorium, Charles Kuralt made the之类的 public appearance. It's, he began, "for the hundredth time," he noted. "It's hard to figure out why the lecture is so successful..." It is.

Kuralt started the lecture in an attempt to help students relax during his talk at Bridgewater State. Known for his relaxed manner and storytelling skills, Kuralt has been the main character in numerous books and television specials. He has been a long-time commentator for CNN, NBC News, and the Associated Press.

Katherine Brady shares her rape experience

By Christine Howard

Katherine Brady has lived a life-long journey from victim to survivor. A victim of incest, she was molested by her father. She escaped into the "perfect marriage" and became a victim of marital rape. She decided to speak out about her experiences and abuse inside, child abuse, and date rape, in general, to help her stop being a victim and start being a survivor.

"There are too many victims and too many statistics in this country, and I want to stop the point blank until the red light at the corner. She has a son in the Campus Center Ballroom. She shares her story.

"I was a victim once, and now I'm a survivor," she said. "I want to help others who are going through the same thing."

SGA Congress accepts new campaign rules for candidates

By Ryan Hayes

The Student Government Association passed a motion which altered the rules concerning SGA candidate elections. This was done at the meeting held Tuesday, April 5.

Elected officials Elizabeth Hallie and Bunni Ross introduced the motion, which would replace the existing rules with ones they hope will ensure less confusion for the candidates and will discuss the disconnection of the election.

Ross told the members that the purpose of her motion was to allow students to vote via phone and other means to allow those who wish to vote to do so without having to go to the voting area. This would change the location of one of the SGA candidates.

The motion questioned whether buildings could be posted with advertisements. The old rule stated that signs could not be posted in any of the academic buildings, but under Ross’s new rule, signs could be posted if the building was empty and not occupied.

Several Congressmen pointed out that this rule was too vague, and for it did not define in which buildings the advertisements could be posted. Congressmen questioned Ross, saying they were going to vote for her. Ross did not classify this new rule, and students who should not be done.

A big change was the addition of the new rule that the candidates had to be physically present at the meeting. This would mean that the candidates had to be physically present at the meeting.

Wanted: nutritious food for Burrill Ave. machines

By Bryan Hayes

Students at the Burrill Avenue building are asking the administration of Bridgewater State College to allow the vending machines to be stocked with more nutritious foods, instead of the food now available.

Currently, there are machines in the building which allows access to soft drinks, chips, cookies, and other unhealthy types of food. The people who use this facility for the whole day are asking for food which is better for them.

According to members of the Social Work Community Organizing Class, who work at Burrill, "we have approached Vice President David Doug about this situation and he was very receptive to the idea of Jackson's actions at foreign relations embarrass the U.S.

The Comment

Jackson has not yet sold the spoils of Afrika, the leader of Libya, Colonel Qaddafi, the father of Castro, Fidel Castro, and the father of Syria, President Assad. It is obvious that Jackson negotiated the end of the Cold War in Africa. If we needed another confirmation that Jackson was worth his weight in gold and the price Jackson paid anything was the news with the world of the African continent. But Jackson led the way in Africa, he was the African leader. He has been a hero in Africa. He is a hero to all of us.

Jackson scored a stunning and only did it legitimize the black political process and made it more importantly boosted the self-confidence and legitimacy of the black political process. Jackson was the first black leader to lead a party for the first time at the Democratic National Committee. This was a great moment for Jackson and it was the first time that a black leader had led a party to victory at the Democratic National Convention.

Don McLean thrills audience at Campus Center Auditorium last Thursday night

Performs all his favorite tunes

By Russell Sherman

Don McLean, armed only with a chair, a pick of his guitar and a friend on electric guitar invited the audience last Thursday night at the Campus Center Auditorium. His repertoire was a mix of folk, blues, pop and country and international. The audience was attentive, but many were unable to hear his music. His song was "American Pie," a song that almost everyone knows. They were left standing around, singing along and enjoying the show.

The whole show was great, but there were some highlights. First, towards the middle of the show, he played a song that he learned from 60's blues guitarists that had incredible lyrics and a strong rhythm that made a very captivating sound.

Second, he ended the show with "American Pie" a song that the whole crowd sang along with. The showmanship and professionalism shone through as he changed a broken guitar string without missing a note. Lastly, his poignant, acoustic version of his international hit, "Vincent," that brought tears to the eyes of some with a heart to feel. The show was full of feelings and emotions showed through well during this, his probably most well-known song.

Don McLean has once again shown famous range on the end of his playing and voice are at their best. The music is a true gem and I hope to see more shows in the near future.

This time of year seniors are very picky. They walk around with glazed eyes, their hair is not even being pulled as matting. "Why did I blow off that math class freshman year? Why did I want to take literature I'll never get a job, I am never going to graduate, because I will have to have a degree."

Senior stress can strike at any time
Career Planning and Placement office can help if it happens to you

One common problem among college seniors is burnout. This is where, during the spring semester, the seniors feel their grades fall below what they normally could accomplish. Internal problems and external pressures can make it hard to do your best. If you are feeling this way, you might want to talk to a counselor or a professional who can help you."
Children's Physical Developmental Clinic

Since the Spring of 1974, the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department has sponsored a community service project: The Children's Physical Developmental Clinic. The program affords students from all majors on campus the opportunity to volunteer their time working with and learning from children and youth with special needs in a clinical physical, motor and social program on Saturday mornings.

What started 15 years ago as a pilot experiment of twenty children has grown into a well established program that now serves over 350 children and youth from 22 communities in the Greater Boston area, Rhode Island and South Shore.

The Clinic has proven to be a viable program that meets the needs of children with special needs and their families.

The Clinic utilizes the college's Olympiad arena, swimming pool, gymnasium, and early childhood intervention center, a physical fitness testing room and outdoor facilities. The development program is one of only about 60 in the country.

The goal of the Clinic is to improve the "total development" of children with special needs. The program stresses the improvement of self-esteem by strengthening the emotional-social aspects of a child's life. All individuals need and desire to participate with others in group, sports and activities and to succeed in an acceptable manner.

Each child in the Clinic program is assigned a clinician who, through observation and assessment, is responsible for determining the needs of the child. The data from this assessment is then used to develop an individualized program for specific areas of concern.

The Clinic program is directed by Dr. Joseph Huber and Professor Johanne Smith. Recently, Dr. Huber and his staff received the Maryland Governor's Award for Excellence in Public Service - the Commonwealth's highest civilian award for public service.

The Clinic is now accepting applications for the Fall semester from all interested students. Applications may be obtained in Dr. Huber's office, Room 103 in the Kelly Gymnasium.

What are your plans for the upcoming semester? Have you begun job-hunting yet, or perhaps you're planning in line some semester courses? Are you challenged by meeting new people? Do you get excited about traveling in other countries?

Career Planning and Placement Office suggests some programs that enable students to study or work in Japan, England, Germany, Switzerland, and Scandinavia.

The International Internship Programs (IIP), based in Tokyo and Seattle, will offer a semester study program called "International Perspective in Business" this fall. The program will consist of formal instruction, research projects, and cultural immersion throughout Europe, as well as a six-month internship in a German business or industry. Participants can also stay with a German family for all or part of the year. This program is offered each year to eligible American citizens between the ages of 18 and 26 with some practical experience in their field of study or at least a high school diploma.

The deadline for the fifth Career Planning and Placement Office has been extended to April 15, 1988.

Campus Conversation

Do you think an increase in financial aid will adequately compensate the increase of tuition?

"Definitely, those people who can't afford college tuition rely on financial aid to get a better education."

Debbie Adams

"I think the private colleges should get 50% and state colleges should get 50% of their financial aid. Because right now, we're giving the rich the distribution."

Dave White

"No, not necessarily everyone is eligible to receive financial aid, and it will help only a small percentage of students."

Andersen Gallery exhibit is on "the cutting edge"
By Prof. Stephen F. Smalley Special to The Comment

On several occasions turned in, the current exhibit in the Andersen Gallery is a triumph. Bob Marjanovic/Vinel Crow (photography and John Crowe (clay still) each inherently beyond conception and single facility to them. This seasoned professional who have been married for fifteen years, continue to display a vestige in their presence and art that is most typically associated with the art world. Both men now reside together.

New York: where the ulterior motive of fist exhibit step forward through their creativeoness, March 20. Looking much like a ll as challenged MTA couple, John and Marjary sprightly hold hands and proceed on pace for their loves entires and future plans. Most of us are at seven or eight in the morning, then you're all set at Stella's. If the atmosphere is functioning well enough to get you stoked, you can fresh because everyone drinks it right away and you're not going to go too soon. The birds may be singing, the air is clean, and a person can still over coffee and people.

Symptomatically the photography is fine. The various groups of clay objects and wheat colored clay pieces, delightfully appealed by this light clay legs. John takes this arrangement to a child's earlycy and no doubt it is equally beautiful. While Marjanovic is a professor at the University of Maine in New York, John Crowe tiny objects as personal metaphors as he states they are. These objects from a lifelong profession of an exciting and teaching profession to pursue full time. Overall, a sense of the ancient centers forever, fantastic offerings to Egyptian pharaohs or a pod from Greek mythology. Stella's made of terra sigillata glazes here. These glazes have been in use for almost all historical years. Particularly impressive is the feeling of the fire and the air. All in all, we get things done just right. This, combined with the excellent atmosphere, the coffee, the food, and the prices. I'll review each breakfast diner individually according to these four criteria.

Stella's
The first breakfast diner is Stella's. Stella's is located on Main St, just over the town line in the Sharon Community Center, Main Avenue, Old, 1526 Main St. Meals are served from 6am to 3pm. It's an easy place to find, as you walk in from the street (actually it's the door). From the outside, the place looks like it would be comfortable on Mayberry, although it wouldn't be there to see Aunt Bee sitting in there smoking a cigarette.

The next place I'm going to visit, The Comment Thursday, April 7, 1988 15

For a quick comparison of the "specials", I'm going to visit Stella's one of my favorite stops. The food is great, especially the breakfast.

The coffee lovers' breakfast guide

Good morning, it's a fresh new day. You get up early, you're all set at Stella's. If you are too worried, you just have to have your coffee. The coffee is great at Stella's and it's some of the best coffee you've ever had.

The coffee at Stella's is great. It's always fresh and comes in the best bags. Right this morning, I've had two great places that can care for the coffee. And Stella's is one of them. The coffee is great, and they are open from 6am to 3pm. They have a great atmosphere and are always friendly. You can relax and enjoy your coffee. The coffee at Stella's is the best you can find. And the prices are great too. You can't beat that.

Fatal or non-fatal, college athletes face the risk of injury every time they step onto the field. This is especially true for football players, who are at a higher risk of injury due to the nature of the sport.

The Risks

The Women's Rugby team won't be able to score on URI.

The Women's Rugby team lost a final hearing Thursday against the University of Rhode Island, 19-14.

"The team struggled for confidence and it was really hard to get psyched for the game, especially coming off two close losses," said Frank Durante, one of the team's co-captains.

"URI is an excellent team and their caliber contacts us, but we gave it our best. Every club as a fan is just as impressed by the thorough team. the other clubs improve too, so we were just to keep grinding forward."

The men lost to URI 14-13. "It was one of the worst officiating games ever," Durante said, with a hint of futility.

On the positive side, Matt Gilliss put one in for URI on a drop kick.

The Men's Lacrosse team took a mild beating Saturday against the University of Rhode Island. The final score was 14-3.

"The team struggled for confidence and was not really ready to get psyched for the game, especially coming off all two close losses," said Frank Durante, one of the team's captains. "URI is an excellent team and their caliber exceeds us, but we gave it our best. Every club we've been competitive against for being the most improved teams, but other clubs improve too, so we just have to keep getting better."

The men lost to URI 14-3. "It was one of the worst officiating games ever," Duncan said, with a hint of félicité.

On the positive side, Milt Gill put one in for BSC on a fast break. Another scoring drive came when Bradley Wilson cut across the floor and the assistance of Duncan scored.

William Hines scored his first goal for BSC against URI's some defenses on a break away.

Superior performances from Guy Dowdell and Ken Faure were BSC's strengths. Player Hines played fewer minutes due to obligations but he came in and did a fine job.

Men such as Jim Whiteley, Jack Horgan, Chris Meech, and Jim Costello are really playing well these days. Morris Mulchay, Seth Baker, Tony Cardoni have improved a lot since last season and are a strong trio for the team.

The team is working harder under Mike Abb's fine coaching. Their next game will be April 8 away at Tufts University. On April 12th the team will be back home to play Northeastern.
