ahead with the college and its plan. "The college is in an upturn," Tinsley said. "There are keen and enthusiastic students and a brilliant faculty (in this institution)."

Tinsley repeated that the time honored by the confidence placed in her and stated that she did not feel like a candidate who was the "third choice" of the Board of the college.

In January, she looks forward to coming back to this area to make financial arrangements and to talk with the students of the campus. Tinsley also said that she knows this is her job she wanted and the place she wanted to be.

"From the time I visited the college (in late October), I knew this was the job I wanted," she said. Tinsley mentioned that even through talk of the new fund-raising budget cost and possible layoffs, "I never wavered" and said that Bridgewater was the place for her to go.

Concerning the budget crises, Tinsley stated that the short-term crises "always" change. "I have also faced this type of financial situation before," she stated. When she was a student in Michigan, her college faced "short-term" budget difficulties. She hopes she will be able to help the college through these times.

When asked what kind of "before" Tinsley was in the decision making process, she stated that she had a "strong" confidence in her own ability.

Tinsley also noted that the college moved to establish a new account for the purpose of running a loan to define the SGA Trust Fund. Also, they moved to create a committee to work with the SGA President in working out the details.

The Board also moved to establish a new account for the purpose of running a loan to define the SGA Trust Fund. Also, they moved to create a committee to work with the SGA President in working out the details.

The search is over. The Board of Trustees officially thanked the Presidential Search Committee staff and students for all the effort that was made to find the new President of Bridgewater State College.

In Memoriam

Last Tuesday, the Student Government Association was not at an uncertain time. That would not necessarily be true if the budget fund was raided. The Congress passed a motion condemning the proposal of Vice President Jones. The Comment applauds the students of Bridgewater State who voted in the special election and asks that the Congress pass the motions, give the Board of Trustees what they requested—such a statement may be needed to ensure continuing interest in the student clientele.

The Comment had 200 votes for the appointment of Dr. Richard Ekman as a member of the Student Government Association. This number below the Board of Trustees what it wanted—such a statement may be needed to ensure continuing interest in the student clientele.

The Comment

By Christopher Penn

I was quite concerned when I learned that last Friday President Ekman announced the appointment of Vice President Jones had been recommended to the Student Government Association Trust Fund. Jane said, the Congress would have to consider the proposal of Vice President Jones. Jones and Chincarrelli staff had not been consulted about the proposal. They obviously had the understanding that the proposal was before the Congress, so the Board of Trustees what it wanted—such a statement may be needed to ensure continuing interest in the student clientele.

I do not agree, however, with the Congress that Dr. Ekman would not have been accepted by the Congress. It is possible that the Congress did not have the information about the financial status of the college. For example, if the Congress did not have the information about the financial status of the college, it might have decided differently. However, there was no indication that the Congress would have made a similar decision if the information about the financial status of the college had been provided.

I do not feel comfortable making a decision based on the information that I have. However, I feel that it is important to provide as much information as possible to the Congress in order to make an informed decision. I believe that the Congress should be provided with all relevant information, including financial data, in order to make a decision that is in the best interests of the college.

Comment staff
The Comment had 2000 frontpage complaints for the appointment of Dr. Richard Ekman as the new president. In the December 8 issue of The Comment, a reader submitted a photo of the College President - monetary differences between the two Presidents. If the Board of Trustees was smart, they would have realized that the educational qualities and leadership qualities are more important than "how much this man can get us." Grant this, but not the only reason they chose him, and I am not sure that Ekman had qualities of making him a capable insider. The trustees should have been looking for a man who would follow their lead and any actions on a short leash. Ekman was a man who did not want to have his hands tied, and be on a leash. So, he left the college high and dry, adding to the wonderful reputation and press which the college has received.

I did not agree, however, with the way the college was managed. For example, they did not believe that the college would be able to come up with more money. The reason for this was the administration would like to reduce the college's new-found surplus, and instead of doing this are related matters. The Trustees have hesitated to touch these funds before coming up with a quick-fix for the budget problems. If the proposal is presented it to the Board of Trustees, I don't think they could get out of him, and letter. We would have accepted the college. We would have accepted anything but the nomination of Ekman by the trustees. I think the nomination of Ekman was correct on this topic. The college should be able to achieve victory over more of the local newspapers.

Tinsley accepts the Presidency from Trustees

By Bryan Hayes

"The Board of Trustees is pleased to appoint Dr. Adrian Tinsley as the tenth President of Bridgewater State College," said Board Chairman Carol Furr. The announcement came after "Thursday night's" of the Board held on December 13. Tinsley has accepted the position.

Tinsley will go to the Massachusetts Board of Regents for Higher Education for final approval. The approval or denial of this candidate will be determined at that Board's meeting early in January. In a statement released Wednesday, December 14, by Furr, she stated that she and the other Board members "join with you (the college community) in congratulating Dr. Tinsley and expressing our firm commitment to find our unqualified support to him."

Tinsley spoke to the 30 or so members of the faculty, staff, students and administration who attended the meeting, stating that being selected to this position was an honor, and thanked the Trustees, faculty, staff and students for all the confidence that has been placed in her.

"I will do my dead-level best to keep your confidence in me," said Tinsley.
