Students come up short in ‘deficit assessment’ case

By M. Lynn Provost

Bridgewater State College students received the result of their court case, in which the Trustees were found guilty of violating the 1978 Collective Bargaining Agreement. The decision, handed down Friday, February 25, stated that the Trustees had overruled the recommendation of the JDC (Joint Dispute Committee). The decision means that if the Board of Trustees vote yes on any tax, the students will be involved in the decision-making process.

The case was brought to the attention of the JDC by a group of students who were dissatisfied with the college's budget. They felt that the Trustees were not considering the students' needs when making decisions about spending money.

The JDC, which is made up of representatives from the college and the students, recommended that the Trustees should have to consider the students' opinions before voting on any tax. However, the Trustees ignored this recommendation and continued with their plans.

The students then decided to take legal action against the Trustees. They filed a suit in the Supreme Court, arguing that the Trustees had violated the 1978 Collective Bargaining Agreement.

After a long battle, the students were finally awarded a victory. The court ruled that the Trustees had indeed violated the agreement and that they would have to consider the students' opinions before voting on any tax.

The Trustees were not happy with the decision and decided to appeal it. However, the students were happy with the outcome and celebrated their victory.

The case has been hailed as a victory for students' rights and has set a precedent for future集体 bargaining agreements. It is hoped that this decision will encourage other colleges to consider the students' opinions before making decisions about spending money.

Long viewed as influential woman

After discovering themselves, they should have respect enough for other people and their individuality. With that we can form a strong social act.

One influential person was a coach who said a rather simple statement, but it is quite valid. His: scene in coaching and having a successful team, is to coach the team to be successful, not for them to win. This point of view gives confidence and courage to work on their weaknesses.

One teaching story that Long told was of a boy named David who was helping his mother to work on math problems. After working on some problems, David's mother was pleased with his progress and praised him for his hard work. However, David was not satisfied with his progress and asked his mother to explain the problems to him again. Long's mother was surprised by this response and asked why he was not satisfied with his progress. David explained that he was not satisfied because he wanted to understand the problems and not just finish them quickly. Long's mother was pleased with his attitude and praised him for his hard work. She also explained to him that he should not be satisfied with just finishing the problems quickly, but he should also learn to understand the problems and work on them with a careful and thoughtful approach.

"There is very little risk," said John Diller of Fitzgerald, who helped plan the event, "that in the event of a blackout, persons from the Curves and Kinney areas would be evacuated before any evacuation was required. He also said that the chances of Pilgrim having a nuclear accident were zero, and that it was a "very unlikely accident.

Russ Hauser, of the Massachusetts Civil Defense said "An accident at Pilgrim at high likelihood, but that the scope must be preserved to simulate accidents. He also said that there was still much work to be done, and that the issue was still being debated at the Massachusetts level. In addition to the other improvements, the board of Pilgrim Edison will be purchased for the college in case a power failure should occur.

Last Thursday, at the Board of Trustees meeting, a vote was supposed to be taken on this matter. However a motion was proposed to delay the vote until the sum committee could discuss it with the Trustees. In the event that Pilgrim is given the go-ahead, there will be a considerable amount of work to be done, which will most likely take place over the summer break. Boston Edison also wants to have a day registration in the next year, although not a full scale one. If an accident does occur, a maximum of 9,000 people could be processed through the Kelly Gymnasium. The college does not have to buy any way housing for housing for the extended people.

Although an accident at Pilgrim would more likely disrupt the college schedule, madness would not be evacuated.

Fifth Presidential Lecture Scheduled

Dr. Dennis Lyngone, a Professor of History at Bridgewater State College, will deliver the fifth in the series of Presidential Lectures on Wednesday, April 5, in the Honors Auditorium in the Hallen Library. The lecture will start at 7:30 pm.

The title of Lyngone's presentation is "New England Beginnings: The Unique Contribution of the Puritans to American History." This will discuss the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, commonly known as the Mormons, are a peculiarly American religion. Specifically, Lyngone will speak on their westward movement, their lasting contribution to the settlement in the west, and their unique contributions to American history.

Following the lecture, there will be a reception in the rounds of Broylan Hall. Lyngone is a member of the History Department at Bridgewater State College for over 20 years.

The sixth Presidential Lecture will be given by Dr. Michael Krasenske, Professor of Political Science, in the fall of 1989, and the seventh will be given by Dr. Howard London, Associate Professor of Sociology and Anthropology, in the spring of 1990.

Spring Lecture Series Underway

The Department of Earth Sciences and Geography, in part with the Earth Sciences and Geography Club has announced the date for their second lecture in their "Lonely Planet" lecture series, held in the auditorium of the Science Building.

Dr. Charles A. Peterson, a senior research associate from the Atmospheric and Environmental Research Corporation of Harvard University, will be the guest lecturer. Dr. Peterson is a specialist in meteorology and geomorphology, and he has studied the effects of human activities on the environment and their impact on natural processes. He has conducted research on the effects of human activities on the environment and their impact on natural processes. He has conducted research on the effects of human activities on the environment and their impact on natural processes.

Also included in this event were Professors Joseph L. Cali of Boston College and John F. Reilly of Bridgewater State College. These lecturers are well known for their contributions to the field of environmental science and have published extensively on topics related to environmental science.

In the "Lonely Planet" lecture series, students are encouraged to attend lectures that focus on how humans are affecting the environment and how we can take action to protect it. The series aims to raise awareness about environmental issues and promote a greater understanding of the complex interactions between humans and the natural world.

The lecture is open to all students, faculty, and staff at Bridgewater State College, as well as the local community. It is free and will be held in the Science Building. The lecture will begin at 3:00 pm, and refreshments will be served before the lecture.

Rushdie's Novel Causes Ruckus Among the Moslems

Iran said they would sever relations with Britain in seven days unless London denounces Salman Rushdie and his book, The Satanic Verses, which is considered blasphemous by some Moslems. Britain quickly rejected the ultimatum. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said 100 of 180 deputies present in the Majlis voted in favor of giving Britain a week to respond.

People Go Wild Over Price Increases in Venezuela

Venezuela's people are rioting over price increases. Because of the riots, the government suspended constitutional rights Tuesday and imposed a curfew. President Carlos Andrez Perez appealed on television for an end to this "incalculable tragedy," which killed up to 20 people and injured over 100. Even as he spoke, gunfire was heard in the streets and looting continued in the worst violence in thirty years of democratic rule. Authorities said thousands were arrested. Among the rights suspended indefinitely were those guaranteeing public gatherings, limits on police searches and arrests and freedom of expression. The last time it happened was in 1964 when Venezuela was plunged by Cuban-backed guerrillas.

Washington Poll Says Drug Use Declines Among Students

Students' use of drugs has hit the lowest level since 1975. More than half of all students, however, used an illegal drug at least once. Researchers and health officials said they were very much encouraged by the results, showing the second straight decline in drug use and the beginnings of a retreat in use of the smokable and highly addictive form of cocaine called coke.

Seventeen Percent of Children's Deaths Are Homicide in United States

The first state-by-state study of injury-related childhood deaths shows that homicide is the leading cause of injury-related death among children younger than age one. Homicide accounts for 17% of injury deaths among kids under one. It is primarily due to child abuse and neglect says researcher Anna Walley of John Hopkins School of Public Health in Baltimore. Homicide claims 10,000 children's lives a year. Other leading causes of injury-related death among children under one: auto accidents 16%, suffocation 14% and house fire 10%.

Old man winter: late but here!
The proposal, by the Mass. Department of Civil Defense, to use Bridgewater State College's Kylor Gymnasium as a registration point and evacuation center in the event of a nuclear accident at the Pilgrim Nuclear Power Plant in Plymouth, should be seriously, yet positively, considered.

This approach the 10th anniversary of the massive Three Mile Island disaster, and, whatever the role of Pilgrim should be more obvious than ever. It is clear that as Pilgrim is operating, the people of the neighboring cities and towns must be able to feel sure that they have somewhere safe to retreat to, should the need arise.

The fact that an SNSC has been asked to provide that assurance, at no cost to the college, should be looked upon as an opportunity, rather than as a burden.

Grounded, the college will have to put up with regular, wide-scale drills, while the plant is running smoothly, and noisily, major disruption of classes, should there be an accident. However, the college is responsible for choosing the SNSC for the project and felt that the institution was capable of handling it.

There are, as well, a number of tangible benefits for the college; should the proposal be accepted. For this purpose, it would be necessary to make several improvements to the facility, including the installation of a power generator to back up the plumbing and shower facility that will be implemented by Boston Edison (Pilgrim's owners), again, at no cost to the college.

It is an opportunity to have some much needed work accomplished. The installation of a new, more efficient emergency shower and decontamination facility will probably be justified by itself. As long as the college is responsible for the college itself, this proposal places BSC in a position where that could be proved to be visibly important to many people living and working in the vicinity of Pilgrim.

This, in addition to the cost of the benefit to the college, is what should truly be considered. Whether we agree with the concept and/or use of nuclear power, it is due, and Pilgrim is opening, and we are being asked to shoulder the cost of it. As long as this potential danger exists, we must be willing to do our part if we need to.

This is the college's, and the Board of Trustees' opportunity to show leadership, not to our money, but to our self-proclaimed responsibility - to minister unto others.

The Board of Trustees should accept the challenge to the proposal for the good of the college, and for the good of the people of southeastern Massachusetts community.

Proposal a plus for BSC

To the Editor:

Bridgewater State College's Education Clubs, Early Childhood Association; Student Council for Exceptional Children, National Honor Society, French Honor Society, Art Honor Society, Biology Honor Society, and Music Honor Society have been invited to the National Forum to attend the meetings. The Forum was held at the Omni Hotel in Washington, D.C. on March 2, 1989.

The Forum provided an opportunity for students to discuss and participate in national issues. The students were able to interact with experts and policymakers, gaining a deeper understanding of the political and social issues facing the country.

Concern over new certification requirements

To the Editor:

As a student at Bridgewater State College, I am concerned about the proposed changes in the certification requirements for our courses. The new requirements appear to be more rigorous and may require additional coursework for students.

I support the students' rights to be treated fairly and to have access to high-quality education. The new requirements may be beneficial in ensuring that our graduates are prepared to meet the demands of the job market.

There are concerns about the safety of Salman Rushdie following the publication of his book, The Satanic Verses. Rushdie has faced death threats and has lived in hiding for many years. It is important to respect his right to freedom of expression and to allow him to live in peace.

Nuclear power no longer a viable energy alternative

By Alex Antypas

During the 1960s, the early days of commercial nuclear power, Americans were ready to harness atomic energy as a new source of infinite power. This optimism began to erode when the 1975 TMI accident, the 1979 Three Mile Island disaster, and the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear disaster all occurred. In the 1990s, the nuclear energy industry continued to suffer from spiraling costs, which continued to escalate.

Both of these goals are possible and one is actually being achieved. The third goal is a magnet for public concern. The Three Mile Island accident and the Chernobyl disaster have made it unequivocally clear that nuclear energy is not worth the risks.

The National Forum provides the nation's press with the views of public issues. It is funded, in part, by a public service by APCMB, the National Association of American Colleges.

Job marketeers will expect college degree according to surveys

By Dr. Richard T. Colgan
Professor of Psychology

Two phrases that comprise the most beautiful duet in our society today—"Will you help?" and "Yes, I will." is college worth the cost?

While not an iron-clad guarantee to success or even employment, most college and university employment graduates believe it is. Job market studies reveal that college graduates tend to be more flexible and adaptability to the rapidly changing occupational environments.

Perhaps a college education broadens one's perspective to the fact that life itself is multifaceted and not simply unidimensional.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics projects that over the next six years, the number of jobs requiring a college degree will increase by 45%. At the same time, the economy is growing professionally, from presenting a paper in meeting rooms, psychology to learning and exchanging information. This year, there will be hospitality suite open to all Psi Chi members from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday and Saturday of the convention. Psychology majors and minors can anticipate an exciting "getting into print" and highly informative Eastern Regional Convention: March 30 to April 2, 1989 in Boston. The convention allows students a host of opportunities to grow professionally, from presenting a paper to meeting rooms, psychology to learning and exchanging information.

Three keynotes speakers for this year are the editors of Teaching the Psychology Journal, Dr. Charles Brewer of Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina. An excellent speaker, he will discuss the title, times, and work of John B. Watson, one of the most outstanding psychologists of this century or more.

Students come up short in ‘deficit assessment’ case

By Byron Hayes

The Bridgewater State College students received the result of their annual deficit assessment last Thursday, according to Dr. Thomas Mullen, the college’s president. "We made some serious money that we thought we could not make, and we did," said Mullen. "The deficit assessment process has been a reality check for us, and we are pleased to see that we have been able to reduce it to a manageable level." The process involved reviewing the college’s budget and identifying areas where expenses could be reduced. The result of the assessment was a $500,000 reduction in the deficit, bringing it to $2.5 million. "This is a significant achievement," said Mullen. "We have been working on this for several years, and we are proud of the progress we have made. We will continue to work on reducing the deficit and maintaining our financial stability." The college’s deficit assessment process is part of a larger effort to improve its financial management and ensure its long-term sustainability. "We are committed to making sure that our students have a quality education," said Mullen. "We will continue to work hard to ensure that we are able to provide a quality education for our students."
